

Attractive Skokie Heights Home

ONE of the latest of the many attractive residences which feature McGuire & Orr's subdivision in northwest Glencoe, known as Skokie Heights, is the home of Walter J. McGuire. It is located on a lot having a frontage of 100 feet on Bluff road, in the highest section of the subdivision and overlooking the Skokie Valley to the west and southwest. The house is of English type of architecture, and has eleven rooms and four baths.

Subdividers Buy Up
Twenty Acre Tract of Evanston Land

The Paramount Realty corporation has purchased from Charles F. Speer, president of the Evanston Street Railway company, twenty acres up in the northwest tip of Evanston. The property is bounded on the south by Central street, on the east by Ridge road, on the west by the Westmoreland Golf club, and by Park avenue on the north.

The much talked of extension of Crawford avenue will run diagonally through the property. Following the plans of the Chicago Regional Plan association, the new thoroughfare will extend northwest, connecting with Skokie Valley road.

The property is zoned for three story apartment buildings and will be placed on the market by the Paramount Realty corporation some time between now and next spring. All improvements are to be put in.

A BUILDING AFFINITY

Rough brick, rugged timbers and wrought iron seem to have been accorded natural affinity and are widely used for detail treatment as well as actual construction in modern adaptations of period houses. Brick panels, laid up between timbers in diapered pattern, frequently frame doorways which are hinged with wrought iron butts extending across the face of the door.
