Woman's Club Will Have Music Program

Artists to Be Marina Keeney, Audiss Waite, Carol Clapp, and Jaroslav Gons

A program of unusual interest is to be presented at the Winnetka Woman's club next Tuesday afternoon. It will be the first musical program of the year, and has been arranged by the music committee of which Mrs. John W. Hansel is chairman.

The artists who will appear are: Miss Marian Keeney, in dance; Miss Audiss Waite, pianist; Miss Carol Clapp, violinist; and Jaroslav Gons, violoncellist.

Mr. Gons, the celebrated Bohemian violoncellist, while in his "teens," was the winner in the "tryout and concurrency play," arranged in Vienna when there was a vacancy for the position of solo-cellist of the Vienna Symphony orchestra. He met with great success in this position, and during the summer months of 1914 he was engaged for a number of joint recitals in Russia. Later on he received the title of professor of imperial Russian conservatories. During the six years spent teaching in Russia, Mr. Gons made many concert tours in that country. In 1920, he came to America, and he has met with greatest applause everywhere he has appeared in this country. At present Mr. Gons is living in Chicago where he teaches. He is in great demand as a soloist.

The program follows:

New Century Club Lays Future Plans

Woman's Century Club to Affiliate with Lyceum Club; Will Build in Loop

The Woman's Century club is new in the club life of Chicago. Its organization dates back to January of the current year, when it was formed for the purpose of having a club in the loop where the activities and interests of women in Chicago and its adjoining suburbs and villages might be combined to establish social and cultural contacts, although facilities for athletics are to be included in the large and beautiful home the club expects to erect within the next two years. Young as it is, it already is enlarging its scope, for at a large tea given Thursday, November 17, it was announced that the club would join with the Lyceum club, an organization devoted to the fine arts. The new club evolving from this combination is to be known as the Woman's Century and Lyceum Club Affiliated.

Through this combination, it is explained, the club will have international affiliations with Lyceum clubs in Europe. Countries of Europe are to have their own departments, each to be represented by a prominent woman of its own nationality residing in America.

Plans for the club's future are many, some definite and near realization, others expressed as tentative. The club is to function after the first of the year with headquarters in the loop. Teas are to be given at intervals, and arrangements are being made for an open forum one day each week at the Palmer House for the discussion of subjects interesting to the home and country.

The building for the club to be monumental, it is announced. "Soundness of finance, beauty in architecture and attractiveness and practicality in appointments will be manifest in this building designed for women and their activities." A children's department will be one of the features, where a mother may leave her children under the supervision of competent attendants in charge of the nursery, playroom, and children's library. There will be a hall of fame to perpetuate the names of the women who have achieved distinction.

The membership includes women prominent in the business and professional world, in club activities, and in social life. Among these are the officers and members of the board of directors; Mrs. Myrtle Blackledge, president pro tem, and vice president, head of the welfare department of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs; Mrs. Louise M. Traer, executive secretary; Mrs. John F. McKeon, vice president, president of the second district, I. F. W.
