

Glencoe Woman Saw North Western Road Enter North Shore

By E. T. Selby

All the discussion now extant as to whether the Chicago & North Western railroad tracks through Glencoe shall be elevated or depressed is not proving more interesting to anyone in the village perhaps than Mrs. Charles M. Dennis, of 823 Greenleaf avenue, for she can recall when the railroad company had but a single track through this section, and it had not been built so many years previously.

Mrs. Dennis has resided in and about Glencoe for sixty-six years, and her grandfather, the late Robert Daggitt, who settled there in 1839 and who, at one time owned a thousand acres in this section just across the county line, sold the North Western railroad company the right-of-way for their track. He even had to move his log house to permit the extension of the road along the route the company desired and Mr. Daggitt, later on, entered into a contract with the company to build the right-of-way fences for several miles, hereabouts.

The North Western road was built through the north shore in 1854 and 1855. Mrs. Dennis says she came here as a child, to live with her grandparents, only six years later, and this has since been her home. So, as she says, "I have seen the North Western grow from a spur to its present splendidly developed two-track system, over which eighty passenger trains pass through the village every day."

New Trier Hockey Teams Tangle in Thrilling Games

Monday, November 21, all first hockey teams of New Trier High school played. The sophomores lost to the juniors 5-0, while the seniors defeated the freshmen 2-1.

The freshman-senior game was close and exciting. The first half ended 1-0 for the seniors, the goal being made by Alice Walton, but the second half was much more exciting. Because it grows dark so early the second halves were shortened to half their standard length of twenty minutes. The seniors played to a good start when Alice Walton carried the ball down the field, and passed to Jean Marx for the second goal. Then the freshmen, after hard playing, carried the ball to the striking circle, where "Sande" Sandburg made a goal.

The second game, between the juniors and the sophomores, was not nearly as interesting. During the first half Grace Cook scored for the juniors, while in the remaining ten minutes of the second half the juniors completed the slaughter by making four more goals, several of which were made by "Libby" Townsend.

New Girls' Organization Has Theater Party Tonight

Alpha Gamma Chi, an organization recently formed by the first, second, and third year high school girls at St. Augustine's church, is having a dinner and theater party in the city this evening. The group will see "Hit the Deck."

The recently-elected officers are: Elizabeth Brower, president; Elizabeth Jenkins, vice president; Esther Stoddard, treasurer; Virginia Jenkin, secretary; and Mrs. Albert H. Ullrich, director.

This organization, which numbers about twenty-five members now, is working hard in preparation for St. Augustine's bazaar, December 7, where the girls will have their own table.

During the Christmas holidays they will have two parties. The first of these will be a tea at which Mrs. Genevieve Forbes Herrick of the Chicago Tribune will be the guest of honor. The second will be a Christmas dance. The dates for these affairs have not yet been decided.

Mrs. John Coutre, 995 Spruce street, entertained twenty guests at a bunco party Saturday.
