Packard Sales Manager Predicts Good Season

A good winter and a season of prosperity next spring can confidently be anticipated in the opinion of R. E. Chamberlain, general sales manager of the Packard Motor Car company. Mr. Chamberlain's conclusions are based on observances of general business conditions in a tour of the country just completed.

"A few localities are not as favored as the general average for the country," he said. "Conditions could be improved upon in one or two sections of the Northwest where the loss of China as a lumber market has been felt. They could be greatly improved, of course, in the flood areas of the Mississippi valley. However, business is nowhere nearly as bad in these sections as it might be thought it would be. The flood reduced the cotton acreage materially, but the crops were above normal in the districts not inundated and prices have increased greatly."

Hub Store in Evanston Takes in Added Space

Finding its Evanston business rapidly outgrowing its space in the Orrington hotel, Henry C. Lytton & Sons has taken over the former dining room of the hotel and is now doing business in its enlarged quarters. The partition between the second floor of the store and the dining room has been torn out, the dining room doorway opening into the hotel sealed up and the fixtures installed. What was formerly the men's clothing department will be devoted entirely to boys' clothing and the new part given over to men's clothing. The new lease gives the Hub 2,400 feet of additional floor space.

DANCE IN PLAY

Eight Northwestern university school of speech girls, members of Orchesus, national dancing organization, will form the dancing choruses for the Evanston Children's theatre production, "The Make Believe Gentleman," at Haven school, Evanston, this Saturday morning, Miss Winifred Ward, director, announces.
