November Permits for Building in Kenilworth, $41,500

Four building permits were issued in Kenilworth during the past month for improvements amounting to $41,500, all of which, with the exception of $600, for a garage, represents the cost of the three new residences authorized during November.

One significant feature in the month's building record, however, was the opening up of another section of Kenilworth's new northwest territory, which is promising so much. Two of the permits were issued for residences on Maclean avenue, the northernmost street of the village in this section and adjacent to the extensive building activity which has featured the Winnetka area just across the line.

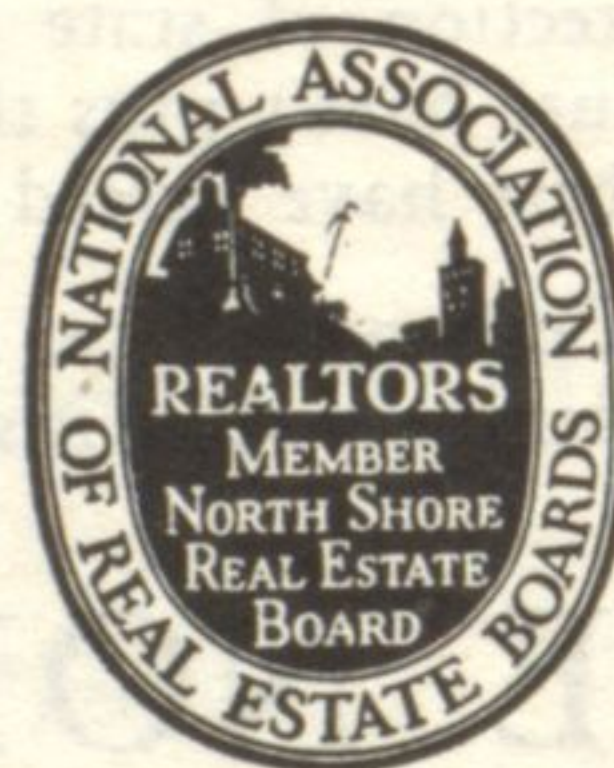

James Crabb, of Wilmette, is building one of the new houses here, a two story brick veneer and detached two car garage, located at 712 Lacleave avenue and which, according to the permit is to cost $10,000.

Edwin R. Cole is building the other new house on this street, at No. 745, which also is to be a two story brick veneer, costing $13,500.

The other permit was for an $18,000 two story brick veneer residence, with attached two car garage, which F. C. Heer, of Chicago, is building at 132 Winnetka avenue.
