

PLAN "TREASURE HUNT"

The Junior class of the North Shore Country Day school, Winnetka, is staging a "Treasure Hunt" on the evening of December 16, to which all other members of the school are invited. The treasure hunt will begin at 6:30, and is scheduled to last three hours.

Miss Adelia Rollinson Barroll of 331 Linden avenue and Miss Margaret Hubsch of 1072 Spruce street, are entertaining at luncheon and bridge at the Skokie Country club during Christmas vacation.

Vote $10,000,000 Bond Issue for Sewage Plants

A ten million dollar bond issue to finance the Sapitary district of Chicago's artificial sewage treatment construction program and other vitally necessary projects now under way or contemplated for early inauguration, was authorized by members of the drainage board at a special meeting called by President T. J. Crowe.

The ordinance providing for the issue was presented by Trustee Michael Rosenberg, chairman of the committee on finance, and adopted unanimously by the board.

Jeanne Baumgartl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Baumgartl of 1180 Oakley road, Hubbard Woods, entertained a number of her friends at a buffet supper and dance on Friday evening, December 9. Several of her friends remained over night.

Norman E. Dally of 1031 Oak street, Winnetka, is seriously ill at St. Luke's hospital.

WILMETTE SUNDAY CLUB IDEA SPREADS RAPIDLY

Community Institution Founded on North Shore Now Being Pat-terned by Many Towns

The fame of the Wilmette Sunday Evening club was again broadcast throughout the land recently when an article by W. Frank McClure, founder and president of the club, appeared on the editorial page of a recent issue of the Chicago Sunday Tribune under the heading, "A Lesson in Church Co-operation."

Mr. McClure's article, indicating that Wilmette has blazed the way for similar community institutions now being established in many other towns and cities, reads in part as follows:

"The day seems to be past, at least in most suburban communities, when churchgoers feel a responsibility for attending two regular church services on Sunday. Church attendance is largely confined to the morning service. In both large cities and suburban communities a successful church attendance at night is the exception to the rule. This, however, is simply a part of our changing world and is not necessarily a reflection on the religious devotion of the populace.

Wilmette Solves Problem

"And yet there is a way of solving this Sunday night problem of the churches in a suburban community. Take, for example, Wilmette, a suburb of Chicago, where the Wilmette Sunday Evening club, now in its thirteenth year, has successfully passed the experimental stage. In a community where once a union Sunday night service brought out an attendance of 50 to 75 now 500 to 1,000 persons gather each Sunday night from October to April in the largest auditorium in the village to hear the great preachers, statesmen, scientist, explorers, and other benefactors of the world. Here each Sunday evening are presented the social, economic, philanthropic, musical, and artistic phases of the world's life in the light of their religious significance. Backed by a laymen's committee of thirty citizens and supported by voluntary subscriptions, this organization has the co-operation of schools, churches, the Parent-Teacher association and the Woman's club.

Opportunity to Co-operate

"The evening hour for a union Sunday service, with speakers of national note, affords an opportunity for churches to co-operate and thus present a solid front to outsiders laboring under the delusion that denominations are narrow, bigoted, and unable to work together.. In fact, I am convinced that, as a rule, a movement such as this in a suburban community can be successfully run only when backed by a union of churches.

"Today in Wilmette and Kenilworth eight churches co-operate in our program. They represent a wide variety of creeds, including Baptist, Presbyterian, Congregational, Episcopal, Lutheran, Methodist Episcopal and one (Continued on Page 47)
