

Kennels De Luxe Gladden North Shore Dogdom

AS one drives north on Waukegan road, from Chicago, just north of Winnetka road and near the village of Glenview, attention is attracted by a group of buildings on the left, in gay yellow, and by a large billboard—"Crawford's Happy Home Kennels."

The name is well chosen, for here is perhaps the chief of de luxe kennels in the Chicago region. There are four buildings—an office and residence for the kennel man, two small buildings for the dogs, owned by the kennels, and the large boarding kennel house, which is shown in the illustration above.

The visitor is ushered into a large and well furnished office. Here he finds lounging chairs and a reading table. The boarding kennels have fifteen long outside runs on each of the two sides. A special fox wire is used for the fencing. All kennel buildings can be heated from a central furnace. Each runway has a storm lobby and raised floor just outside the door from the inside stall.

Mrs. William R. Crawford, the owner, finds delight in giving the dogs her personal attention and Mrs. Crawford, herself a sportswoman and horsewoman of note, spends several hours daily in overseeing the kennel affairs.

The entire three acres, a most valuable piece of property, is being landscaped with flowerbeds and a hedge of poplars on all four sides. Mrs. Crawford fancies chows and foxterriers. Her boarding kennels usually have a waiting list.

The Crawfords have been residents of Wilmette for 13 years.
