CHICAGO OPERA NEAR END OF CURRENT YEAR

"The Jewels of the Madonna" to Be Heard Sunday: Mary Garden in "Resurrection" Friday

The twelfth and next to final week of Chicago's Civic opera season begins Sunday afternoon, January 15, with a gala matinee performance of "The Jewels of the Madonna," at which the many opera lovers, both from the city and the suburbs, who find this particular time of the week most convenient for attending performances, will hear a distinguished cast in one of the most popular of all modern operas. Rosa Raisa will once more have the role of Maliella, to which she brings such superb theatrical skill and such a prodigious wealth of song, and Augusta Lenska and Giacomo Rimini will also be heard among the thirty-one singers required for the cast. An item of special interest will be Antonio Cortis' first local performance in the tenor role. Roberto Moranzoni will conduct, and the ballet will be seen in the third act.

"Faust" will be repeated Monday night, January 16, with the company's new Belgian tenor, Rene Maison, in the title role. Edith Mason, Vanni-Marcoux, Desire Defrere and Maria Claessens will have familiar parts, and Irene Pavloska will be added to the cast in the role of Siebel. The ballet will dance. Giorgio Polacco will conduct.

"La Gioconda" Tuesday

Tuesday's bill is "La Gioconda," one of the season's most popular operas, with Rosa Raisa, Lorna Doone Jackson, Augusta Lenska, Charles Marshall, Cesare Formichi and Charles Baromeo in principal roles. The ballet will be seen in the famous "Dance of the Hours," and Roberto Moranzoni will lead the performance.

Florence Macbeth, eminent American coloratura soprano, will rejoin the company for Wednesday's mid-week matinee, when "Rigoletto" is given its last hearing this season. Charles Hackett's first appearance as the Duke this season will be an added attraction. Richard Bonelli, Lorna Doone Jackson and Charles Baromeo will have other roles. Henry G. Weber will conduct. The performance will be sung at popular prices.

"Sapho" Wednesday

"Sapho" will be given its second performance Wednesday evening with the same cast heard in its revival a week before—Mary Garden, Lucille Meusel, Maria Claessens, Fernand Anseau, Desire Defrere and Edouard Cotreuil; Giorgio Polacco conducting.

Thursday's bill will be the delightful operetta, "Die Fledermaus," heard for the second time since its introduction as a special New Year's Eve bill. It will be sung in English by Rosa Raisa, Irene Pavloska, Charles Hackett, Forrest Lamont, Giacomo Rimini, Chase Baromeo, Virgilio Lazzari and others. The ballet will interpolate a dance to Johann Strauss' "Beautiful Blue Danube" waltz, and Henry G. Weber will conduct.

"Resurrection" will be given its only performance of the season as Friday night's special bill. Mary Garden, whose success in the role of Katuscha has led to an extensive revival of Alfano's opera in Italy and France, will have a new Prince Dimitri in the person of Rene Maison. Lorna Doone Jackson, Maria Claessens, Cesare Formichi and others will also be heard. Roberto Moranzoni will conduct.

"La Traviata" Saturday

"La Traviata" will be repeated at the Saturday matinee, with Claudia Muzio in the title role. Antonio Cortis has been added to the cast as Alfredo, and Richard Bonelli will be the father. The ballet will dance, and Giorgio Polacco will conduct.
