

SPEED APARTMENTS

Rush Work on Four Buildings Comprising Sixty-four Apartments and Twenty-eight Stores

While the Winnetka Zoning commission and Village council is wrestling with the proposed drastic amendment to the zoning ordinance which would practically prohibit the building of apartments over stores in the village, work is going rapidly forward on the four latest improvements of this nature, which will provide the village with sixty-four more apartments and twenty-eight more stores.

The foundation is in and work has been started on the Thomas Bulger twenty-four apartment and nine store building at the corner of Merrill and Linden avenues.

Work on the foundation is completed for the E. T. Leonard company building, also in Hubbard Woods, on Linden avenue, a short distance north of Tower road and which will have eighteen apartments and eleven stores.

S. Di Francisco is soon to start work on his new building at the triangular corner of Tower road and Linden avenue, a building to comprise eight apartments and five stores.

John Smith expects to break ground about February 15 at the southeast corner of Chestnut street and Chestnut court for a fourteen apartment

POET VISITS HERE

Johanna Frada, Associate Editor of Seattle Jewish Transcript, Guest at Pick Home

Winnetka has had a distinguished visitor in the community for several months in the person of Mrs. Herbert Greenberg of Seattle, Wash., who, under the name of Johanna Frada, is known throughout the country as a poet and associate editor of the Jewish Transcript in the western city.

Johanna Frada

Mrs. Greenberg has been visiting at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Albert Pick, Jr., in Winnetka. She will go to New York within a few weeks before returning to the West Coast.

In her poetry Johanna Frada gives expression to a prophetic vision of the destiny of the Jewish race. She sounds the note of an undying hope, yea, even a note of triumph. One of her outstanding contributions follows:

by Johanna Frada

*An ancient people. Lo! awake!
In fetters that the centuries break!
And in their eyes a vision gleams
That lights the future with its dreams.*

*With heads uplifted to the skies,
The crouching multitudes arise,
From East and West, from South and North,
Behold, the multitudes come forth!*

*A tragic throng on royal quest,
Of every land, unwelcomed guest;
The children of a mighty king,
The saints of whom the psalmists sing.*

*Unconquerable through blood they trod,
A ravaged mass, on sea and sod;
Through groans of woes, past sacred Bier,
And still they sing hosannas—hear!*

*They come afar, from land and sea,
Jehovah's heirs they are to be.
Their ancient kingdom to rebuild,
It is a prophecy fulfilled.*

*A land—the world's most sacred spot
That fell to desecration's lot,
Where law and liberty had birth,
When Israel was king of earth.*

*O mystic singers in the flesh!
Now comes your glory all afresh;
As bride in holy raiment sheathed
Fair Zion stands of HIM bequeathed.*

*Behold her lovely vision breaks
Through clouds of malice, and awakes
Fair David's harp. Ten thousand strings
Of her Immortal beauty sings!*

*Its rapturous music puts to flight
Her woes upon the wings of night
As from afar, ecstatic, fleet,
Impassioned, breaks at Zion's feet!*

*And pageantrics from worlds of old,
Triumphant march through arcs of gold
With melodies and victory shod
To gather at the feet of God.*
