TEACHERS TO ATTEND CHILD STUDY SESSION

Local Public School Instructors
Granted Leave to Hear Lectures at Palmer House

Superintendent Arthur B. Rowell of the Glencoe public schools and Superintendent C. W. Washburne of the Winnetka public schools have received permission from their respective school boards to grant the teachers a special holiday Friday afternoon, February 17. This will give the teachers an opportunity to attend the Mid-West Conference on Child Study and Parent Education, which is to be held at the Palmer House, Chicago, on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of next week.

The purposes of the Chicago Association for Child Study and Parent Education, which is sponsoring this conference, the second of its kind, are to train the parent to train the child; to replace opinion with knowledge; to act as a clearing house between the expert and the parent; and to make parenthood more intelligent, more efficient and of greater use to the children.

Find Local Interest

The personnel of the Friday morning session will be of special interest to Glencoe and Winnetka parents and school teachers, because of their association with the Illinois Institute for Juvenile Research. The program is in co-operation with the Illinois Society for Mental Hygiene, of which Dr.

Ralph Hamill of Winnetka is president. The chairman of the session is Dr. Herman Adler, who is the director of the institute. Through co-operation with the pre-school branch of the institute, the work of the Winnetka Day School Nursery has been carried on this year; and under the leadership of Miss Ethel Kawin, director of the pre-school branch, the courses in child study have been successfully worked out through the child study committee of the Glencoe Parent-teacher association. Those who have shared in the work of the nursery school in Winnetka and the child study class in Glencoe will be happy, no doubt, to hear Dr. Hamill and Dr. Adler, who are largely responsible for the splendid progress of the institute.

Emotional Conflicts—Topic

William Healy, former head of the institute, and now head of the Judge Baker Foundation in Boston, will be the principal speaker Friday morning. His topic will be, "The Constructive Aspects of Emotional Conflicts."

Thursday morning, February 16, beginning at 10 a. m., there will be lectures on "What Science Offers on Character Education," by Dr. Mark A. May; and "Character Development Seen in Perspective," by Dr. E. D. Starbuck. Round table discussions take up the time from 12:30 p. m. to 2:30 p. m., on "Expression Through Literature and Character Development," by Irene I. Cleaves; "The Use of Leisure Time Activity for Character Development," by Dr. J. W. F. Davies and Dr. J. M. Artman; "Teaching Children the History of Religions," by Dr. H. S. Dimock; "Social Attitudes and Character," by Jane Addams; "The Ebb and Flow of Religious Feeling in Adolescence," by Dr. Solomon B. Freehof. In the afternoon there will be lectures on "Wholesome School Life," by Prof. Henry C. Morrison; "A School Community Project in Pictures," and "An Integrated View of the Child," by Dr. Joseph Jastrow.

Friday's Program

Dr. Florence Mateer will lecture Friday at 10 a. m. on "The Physical Basis of the Child's Emotional Health"; and Dr. Bernard Glueck will talk on "The Significance of Parental Attitude for the Destiny of the Individual." Round table discussions from 12:30 p. m., will embrace "Creative Expression through the Arts in Relation to Personality Development," by Lucia Burton Morse; "Creative Activity and Enriched Quietness in Character Development," by Laura B. Garrett; "Social Attitudes and Character," by Prof. Ellsworth Faris; "Building Character Through Unified Education," Perry D. Smith; "The Modern Child and the Idea of God," Dr. A. Eustace Haydon; Dr. William Healy will take up the afternoon. There will be a dinner at 6:30 p. m., and George A. Dorsey will lecture on "How to Make or Break the Child"; and Dr. Harold Rugg will talk on "Creative Education and Character."

Dr. M. C. Otto will talk on "Ideals and Character," on Saturday morning; and he will be followed by Dr. William Kilpatrick, talking on "Discipline and Character."

Reservations for the Friday evening dinner may be made through the association office at 537 S. Dearborn street, telephone Wabash 7354.
