

Barry Rug Store to Move to New Quarters

Removal of Barry's Rug store from the Davis street location it has occupied for eight years to 806-10 Grove street, Evanston, will take place May 1. The new store as it will appear when the complete renovation and remodeling has been finished is shown in the above drawing.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Divine of 261 Linden avenue had a party of sixteen guests at the farm dinner-dance at Skokie Country club last Saturday evening.

Mrs. Aubrey Williams, 163 Bertling lane, is ill in St. Luke's hospital. She is now convalescing after a slight operation, and expects to return to her home in a week.

David G. Barry Will Move His Rug Store to Larger Quarters

Eight years continual expansion of the David G. Barry Floor Covering store will make its largest step soon with the removal of the business from 514 Davis street to 806-10 Grove street, Evanston.

David G. Barry, proprietor, announces this change of location to a place with floor space seven times the size of the present quarters and states that the opening of the new store will be around May 1.

"We have found this step necessary to serve adequately the friends we have made," states Mr. Barry. "We have outgrown our present space, and as our new friends become more numerous expansion is necessary that they may be better served."

Barry's store is the only exclusively retail floor covering store on the north shore and has drawn trade from all the communities to the north as far as Milwaukee and also many customers from Chicago. Mr. Barry has made concentrated effort to carry a stock equal to that found in any larger city, to that in Chicago or New York houses.

A Complete Line

In his new store everything from door mats to Oriental rugs will be carried—a line complete in every detail. To meet the growing fashion of covering floors completely, broad looms, Wiltons, chenilles—both domestic and foreign—will be in stock. Besides there will be all the leading makes of linoleums.

Barry's rug line itself will include many hand-tufted rugs and many foreign makes. Mr. Barry does a great deal of importing through the eastern markets from which he buys all his stock, and hence will have German, French and Austrian rugs included in his stock. Through his eastern contacts he is also able to serve customers wishing special orders.

The present expansion of the Barry store follows eight years after coming to Evanston as a pioneer in the retail floor covering business. Everyone predicted failure for him at that time, but despite all handicaps the business has proved its place in such a community as this city. It was started at 514 Davis street in a store shared with a decorating business. It grew from its single room and took over the entire front part of the store. Soon the rear partition had to be moved further back and that action was necessarily repeated until the shop assumed its present size.

And now it is the demands of the store's patronage which makes necessary the removal to the Grove street location. There it will occupy a 7,000 square foot area in a store which will be entirely redecorated and remodeled to the needs of the floor covering business.

Mr. Barry came to Evanston eight years ago after being ten years with Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., in the retail rug department. Previously he had engaged in the rug business in Syracuse, N. Y. His entire business life has been merchandising. He started in Rome, N. Y., in general merchandising in the days when, he says, men sold any and everything. As specializing became necessary he turned exclusively to the floor covering business.

With such a schooling, Mr. Barry plans now to include in his new store additional kindred departments.

With his floor covering business he is conducting a cleaning and repairing department, which, in the new store, will be handled by the newest equipment to be installed. The work done by the Barry store has come to be regarded widely as some of the finest in this district.

Mr. Barry still is employing the same workers as when he started his business. The next expansion step will be accompanied by the increase of his staff.
