North Shore Country Day School Presents Opera

Seventy-five members of the High school sang in the chorus, twenty-four being assigned parts as "leads," in the Gilbert and Sullivan opera, "Princess Ida." The opera is part of the Music curriculum of the High school, the major part of the work having been done in the regular music classes. The scenery, costumes, and properties were designed and executed by the art and shop classes, assisted by some of the parents. The lighting effects were worked out by a group of High school boys, and the business management was entirely in the hands of the High school pupils.
