WASH HOUSE AT SMALL COST
 While it has long been known that washing—common washing—improves a painted house and often saves one coat of paint, its cost has often interfered with the operation. Now a machine has been manufactured and used for some little time which washes a painted house that is dirty and sooty. There is a large mixing tank with a hose which is attached to a faucet. A motor placed under the tank is connected to an electric light socket and keeps admitting the necessary washing compound. The solution passes through the hose and out of mop by means of a huge pressure pump.

IN INDIAN HILL ESTATES

Bills Realty Reports Rapid Development—One New Home Will Have 13 Rooms

The rapid development of Indian Hills estates continues without halt and Bills Realty company announces that construction of several new homes has commenced. Fred G. Becker, Comptroller of the Chicago Mill and Lumber company has begun construction of a thirteen room stone and slate residence designed by Anderson and Ticknor. The building is being done by S. L. Bateman.

Two unusual homes, one of Colonial and one of English Cottage design also are under construction on adjoining half acres fronting on Iroquois lane. These are for William B. McKnight of the loan department of Toombs and Daily company and Marley Halvorsen, head of the loan department of the Chicago Trust company. R. H. Fairclough is the architect and John Mills the builder.

Bills Brothers, Inc., are completing a unique Cape Cod Colonial home for William O. Gaines, manager of the Munsingwear corporation, fronting on Blackhawk road.

Bills Brothers, Inc., also are completing three additional homes fronting south on Lake street, one of English design containing six bedrooms, four baths, unusually large lounge, living rooms and master living and bedroom; one unique type of New England Farmhouse of seven rooms, a feature of which is the story and one-half reception hall—this building being designed by George F. Keck. A third tower house designed by Joseph H. Bristle has a story and one-half living room, a master bedroom of 20 feet by 24 feet, dressing room and bath of very unusual proportions and distinctive tile design.

the Winnetka office of Quinlan & Tyson was the broker.
