

Break Ground for New Addition to Kenilworth School

The contract for the erection of the new addition to the Joseph Sears school in Kenilworth was awarded to the Charles E. Anderson company of Chicago by the Kenilworth school board, it was announced last week.

Ground was broken for the new addition by the Reiss Construction company of Evanston, to whom the sub-contract for excavation has been let by the Anderson company on Tuesday of last week and material progress had been made before nightfall. Two large trees were removed from the site of the new addition, the power shovel had "dug itself in" and progress had been made in the wrecking of the one-room wing on the east side of the old building which is to be removed to make way for the addition.

The new addition to the school will front on Abbottsford road, extending at right angles to the old structure from the south end of the school yard to the Skokie ditch on the north. It will be architecturally harmonious with the old structure and will house the kindergarten and the first five grades of the school. It will also house the gymnasium, providing $50,000 in addition to the original amount provided by bond issue can be raised by the Parents' association through public

Break Ground for School Addition

Ground was broken on Tuesday of last week for the new addition to the Joseph Sears school in Kenilworth, an architect's drawing of which is shown above. The new addition, designed by Perkins, Chatten and Hammond of Chicago, will face to the east on Abbottsford road. The older section of the school will be to the rear and at right-angles to it. The entrance at the south end of the school—to the left—is the entrance into the gymnasium while the other entrance to the north—right—is into the school proper.

subscription. It is anticipated that no difficulty will be encountered in raising the additional amount as the gymnasium is very essential to the curriculum of the school. It is planned to have the structure completed by the start of the fall term.
