"Silent" Drama No Longer Silent, Signing Up Voices

Having, at least partially, settled the problem of how much the stars are worth and divers other questions of equal import, the motion picture producers are now faced with a new problem—that of signing up actors with good speaking voices for roles in the no longer silent drama.

Almost every producing company either is making or is considering making films with a synchronized audible accompaniment. First National has a filmtone, so have Fox, F. B. O., Warner Bros., and Famous Players and it is probable that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will be making announcements before long.

B. P. Schulberg, the little magistrate of affairs for Famous Players, has started the big stampede and has signed up John Cromwell for a series of important parts. It is Mr. Schulberg's intention, it is said, to feature Cromwell in Paramount-Tone productions. Robert Milton has also been signed up by Paramount and it is pretty certain that these contracts are but the first of a long series of such announcements.

It would seem, then, that in addition to the qualities formerly required by casting directors the actor will have to have a good speaking voice to get a contract. Mebbe the boys and girls with Hollywood tendencies won't be shouting by the lake shore now! The voice is capable of being cultivated and perhaps that wouldn't be a bad idea.

Varsity Offers Charlie Chaplin's "The Circus"

"The Little Snob," a May McAvoy vehicle, is the prime consideration at the Varsity this Saturday.

Charlie Chaplin's "The Circus" is to be presented on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of the coming week. Must we waste time, space and effort to advise you to go see it?

"Burning Daylight," a First National opus featuring Milton Sills and Doris Kenyon, will be the Friday and Saturday offering.
