

Court of Honor Will Be Feature at World's Fair

The Great Court of Honor to be laid out on the island which is to be built in the lake off of Burnham Park as the site of most of the Chicago World's Fair Centennial celebration will be twice as wide and half again as long as the Court of Honor at the first World's Fair.

This was decided recently during a conference held by Daniel H. Burnham, secretary of the centennial; Dr. Allen D. Albert, assistant to President Rufus C. Dawes, and Edward H. Bennett, consulting architect for the Chicago Plan commission and a member of the Centennial Architectural commission.

The Court of Honor will extend from Sixteenth to Twenty-third street, Mr. Bennett said, in going over the ground plan of the Fair grounds. Two ornamental bridges, from which visitors may obtain unobstructed views of the lagoon beneath, will lead directly to the Court. These will be in addition to the regular bridges which will be built from the mainland to the island. The ornamental bridges, which will be like those along the Rialto in Venice, only on a larger scale, will be greeted at Seventeenth and Twenty-second streets.

A great tower, which also is to be highly ornamental, will be built on the Court.

At the far end of the Court will be a moat, dividing the airport from the exposition grounds proper. Access to the airport will be by two bridges and four subways, all of which will be equipped with electrically-controlled gates. The purpose of the gates is to prevent any great rush of people on the airfield upon the arrival of flyers and to prevent flyers and their planes being endangered by enthusiastic crowds of the sort that swooped down upon Colonel Charles Lindbergh when he crossed the Atlantic.

The landing field itself will be 3,000 feet in diameter, all in sod, this being the requirements of the aviation engineers for the mail service and the commercial companies now operating here.

Girls' Dancing Class in Demonstration Program

Wednesday, May 23, Miss Agnes Biesemeier's dancing class at New Trier gave an exhibition program for the mothers of the members. The affair was in the nature of a demonstration of the year's work. The class consists of about twenty-five girls who meet every Wednesday after school. This group received credit towards the Girls' Athletic association just as do any of the teams in hockey, basketball, and other sports, and is considered an event in girls' physical education program just as well as any of the others. After the program refreshments were served.
