

Follow the Trail to INDIAN HILL ESTATES

By courtesy of the Mayors of Winnetka and Wilmette,
Indian guides will point the way this Saturday and Sunday, June 2nd and 3rd

"The 'Ongwe' are coming"—so they called the Indians in Skunny-Wundy. Many of them came up through the Skokie Valley and over the ridge into Ouilmette Reservation, comprising much of present Winnetka, Kenilworth, Wilmette and Evanston . . . and particularly Indian Hill Estates, which is thumbed in between these close in-lying North Shore suburbs.

THE ceremonial costumes, the Cochiti drums, the Santa Clara jars, the Zuni pots, the Navajo rugs and looms of these First Americans have been arranged for exhibit this week and week-end by Fred Leighton's Indian Trading Post in the lounge room of Estate-House Tudor in Indian Hill Estates.

Catherine Reckitt's House and Garden Shops, Inc., have fashioned two fine houses, Tudor and Farme, into two wonderfully livable homes by the very truest of English and New England Colonial furnishings—the ensemble being a joy forever to discriminating people. Your inspection invited.
