Purple Athletes in Final Training for Chance at Olympics

Northwestern university's Olympic team candidates in track, swimming and wrestling have entered their final period of training in preparation for the tryouts to be held the first few weeks in July.

Ten members of these three teams are conceded good chances of winning a place on the team which will represent Uncle Sam in the international games. In the 1924 games Northwestern was represented by four athletes. They were Ralph Breyer, Dick Howell and Sybil Bauer in swimming and Bryan Hines in wrestling.

Coach Tom Robinson has five boys in training for the coming tryouts and expects several of them to land a position. They are Wally Colbath, diving; Al Schwarz, free style; Don Peterson and Eddie Lennox, breast stroke and Dick Hinch, back stroke.

Coach Frank Hill expects to take Rut Walter and Bill Droegemueller east to the track tryouts in July. Walter seems an almost certain bet to land a berth on the team while Droegemueller has a fighting chance.

Three wrestlers, George LeFavour, Bob Miller and Ralph Lupton will go to Grand Rapids for the final tryouts. Coach Stuteville feels that all three will make a strong bid for a position on the team. Lupton is national intercollegiate champion in his division and is the most promising of the three. Both he and LeFavour, who is a freshman, are lightweights. Bob Miller, also a freshman, is a light heavyweight.
