

Follow the Trail to Indian Hill Estates

ESTATE-HOUSE TUDOR

Typical of the characterful architecture evidenced in all Indian Hill Estates homes. Completely furnished with Farme-House and open for inspection.

NOTE: Farme-House has been sold since the preparation of this announcement—but through the courtesy of Mr. and Mrs. James Conrad, its new owners, it may be viewed for one week.

WHERE the Evanston light house now stands, friendly Indians of the Illini Tribe guarded Father Marquette's camp in 1674. This week-end their descendants will guide you to the site of their village on the Ridge — now Indian Hill Estates, near the Southwest corner of Indian Hill Club.

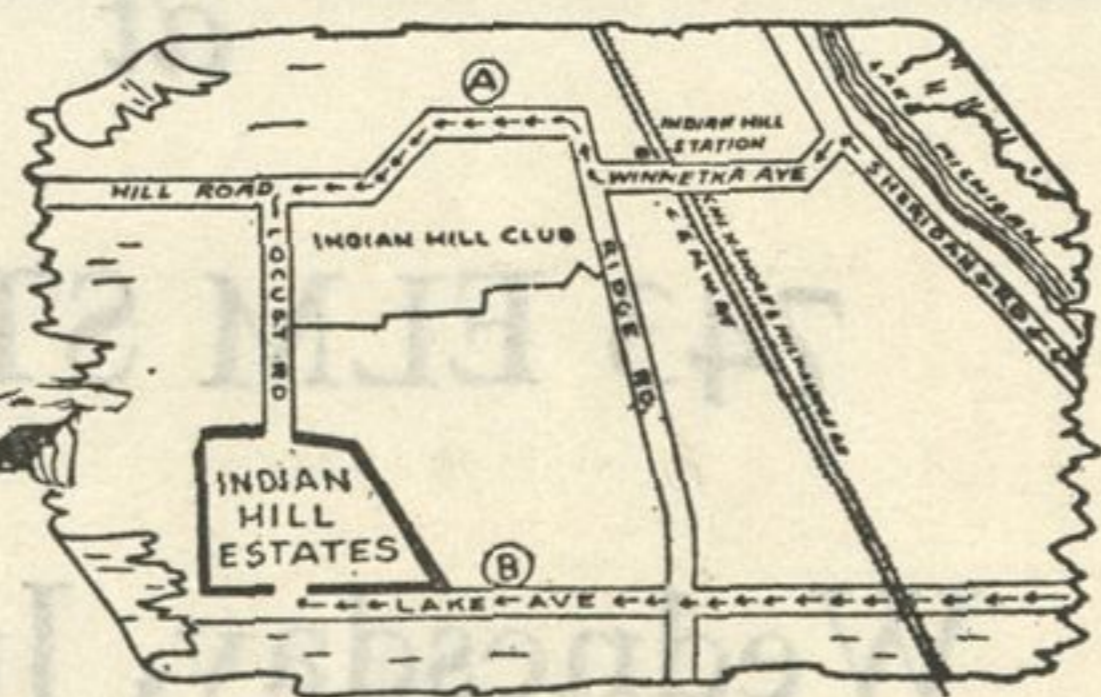

In the lounge room of Estate - House Tudor (pictured above), The Indian Trading Post has a fascinating exhibit of the weapons, utensils, baskets and looms of these First Americans.

Two Perfectly Furnished Homes

Rooms cheery with color, draperies of most unusual blendings, specially designed Charles of London chairs, Duncan - Phyfe dining room ensemble, rare English and Colonial prints — will intrigue you in Tudor-House and Farme-House — both exquisitely furnished by Catherine Reckitt's House and Garden Shops, Inc.

Your inspection of these Estate-Homes and six others rapidly nearing completion — and of the remarkably spacious landscaped lawns of Indian Hill Estates — is invited at any twilight hour this week or this week-end.

The lighting of the houses in the evenings lends an additional charm of silhouette and shadow. You will be welcome any evening or day this week — and also over the week-end.

By courtesy of the Mayors of Winnetka and Wilmette, Indian Guides will point the way this Saturday and Sunday, June 9th and 10th.
