John Davies of Wilmette Gets General Contract to Reconstruct Wilmette Theater Structure

Work of transforming the old Village theater building in Wilmette into a modern banking institution has been started. The first steps were taken Tuesday of this week by John Davies, who is the general contractor, and from now until the latter part of September or early in October, when the reconstruction work has been completed and the First National bank of Wilmette moves from Central avenue to its new home, there will be plenty of activity.

While Mr. Davies, who built the Winnetka fire station and many residences here, is the general contractor and will handle the steel and masonry contract, he has associated with him James Wigginton of Evanston. The American Terra Cotta company has been awarded the contract to furnish this material which is to decorate the front of the reconstructed building.

The contract for the vault door and other equipment has been given to the Mosler Safe company. Martin Jacobson of Wilmette will look after all plumbing.

New Nash Type of Auto Is Coming Out Soon

While business and financial circles are stirring with the discussion of recent automobile company mergers and proposed consolidations, the deepest mystery cloaks activities in and about a number of the great American automobile manufacturing plants.

Persistent rumors of new car models—some fantastic, some based on the fringe of fact—have been afloat for weeks. They whisper that new and revolutionary types of cars are about to be introduced.

One of the principal "storm centers" for this speculation surrounds the big Nash Motors plants in Kenosha, Racine and Milwaukee, where all indications point to the introduction within a few weeks of an entirely new type of automobile.

For more than a year the highly organized manufacturing forces under the leadership of C. W. Nash, whose mastery of design and mechanical adaptation has been acknowledged in the industry since its earliest days, have been working with unprecedented secrecy.

Details of an entirely new Nash motor have been guarded with particular secrecy but information has been received stating that because of its advanced design the new engine will outperform anything heretofore placed on the market, according to Nash Sales agency, 547 Lincoln avenue, Winnetka.
