

Union Church Is Scene of Wedding of Kenilworth Girl

Charming among the June weddings was that of Miss Phyllis Ruf, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur William Ruf of Kenilworth, and Claude Kelsey Sanders of Evanston.

The setting for this event was the Kenilworth Union church. The service was read by the Rev. Herbert Willett at 8:30 o'clock, Saturday evening, June 16. A reception followed immediately at the bride's home, 236 Cumnor road.

The bridal party included Miss Helene Seibold, maid of honor; the Misses Katharine Stolp, Betty Harwood, Frances Stevens, Betty Taylor, Lois Basset, and Mrs. Arthur Ruf, bridesmaids; Clifford Smith, best man; and the ushers, Frank Sanders, Walter Sanders, Granville Revere Lewis, Fred Bruce, Jack Reasner and Basset Ruf.

The bride was gowned in ivory satin made with a bodice of lace with tight fitting, long sleeves. Old lace bordered the peacock-shaped train over which hung the long tulle veil with its coronet of lace and tulle fastened with orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of roses, sweet peas, and lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor was attired in green chiffon and the dresses of the bridesmaids were of yellow moiré trimmed with tulle, long in back, with bustle bows of green, and an old-fashioned flower on the shoulder of each. The bridal attendants all carried shower bouquets of mixed flowers to carry out the color of the frocks.

The mother of the bride wore peach chiffon and Mrs. Sanders was in brown lace.

Among the out-of-town guests were the following: Mr. and Mrs. James G. Minert, Mr. and Mrs. Ira N. Davenport, Miss Juliette Brown, and Dr. and Mrs. William Haney.

After returning from their wedding trip, the Sanders will be at home at 310 Cumnor road, Kenilworth.

ROUND TABLE MODEL 1928

"Dick Byrd—Air Explorer," by Commander Fitzhugh Green, is the first title in the "Adventurer Series," books for boys about modern heroes. The knights of today seem to have abandoned trusty steeds for airplanes. And the Round Table has become the Round Earth. Commander Byrd in a foreword to this book says: ". . . The boys of today are going to decide how successfully we shall fly tomorrow. In fact, I think the lads who make models and study airplane design in that way may do more to revolutionize the art of flying than even the aeronautical engineers . . ."
