Northwestern Dean of Women Resigns to Become a Bride

Resignation of Mrs. Winifred G. Richardson, dean of women at Northwestern university, and the appointment of Mrs. Florence Schee Robnett of Evanston as her successor was announced by President Walter Dill Scott last Saturday after the annual meeting of the board of trustees of the university.

Mrs. Richardson, a graduate of Northwestern, became dean of women in May, 1924, after having engaged in social work at the Chicago Commons settlement. She succeeded Mrs. Mary Ross Potter, who became counselor of women. Last winter Mrs. Richardson announced her engagement to Arthur M. Long of Chicago, and asked to be relieved of her duties as dean of women. She will be married early in the summer and will make her home in Wilmette.

Mrs. Robnett, the new dean of women, also is a Northwestern graduate. For the last three years she has been director of the Chicago Collegiate Bureau of Occupations. Previous to that she was active in advertising, publicity and vocational fields. During the war she was director of the employment department of the women's committee of the council of national defense of Illinois. She has delivered lectures in the leading universities and colleges of the middle west on "The College Woman in Business and the Professions."

Mrs. Robnett is a member of the Pi Beta Phi sorority, the Evanston Woman's club, the Woman's City club of Chicago, the League of Women Voters and other organizations. She has been on the board of governors of the Northwestern university foundation since its organization.

Prepare to Pave Tenth Street This Summer

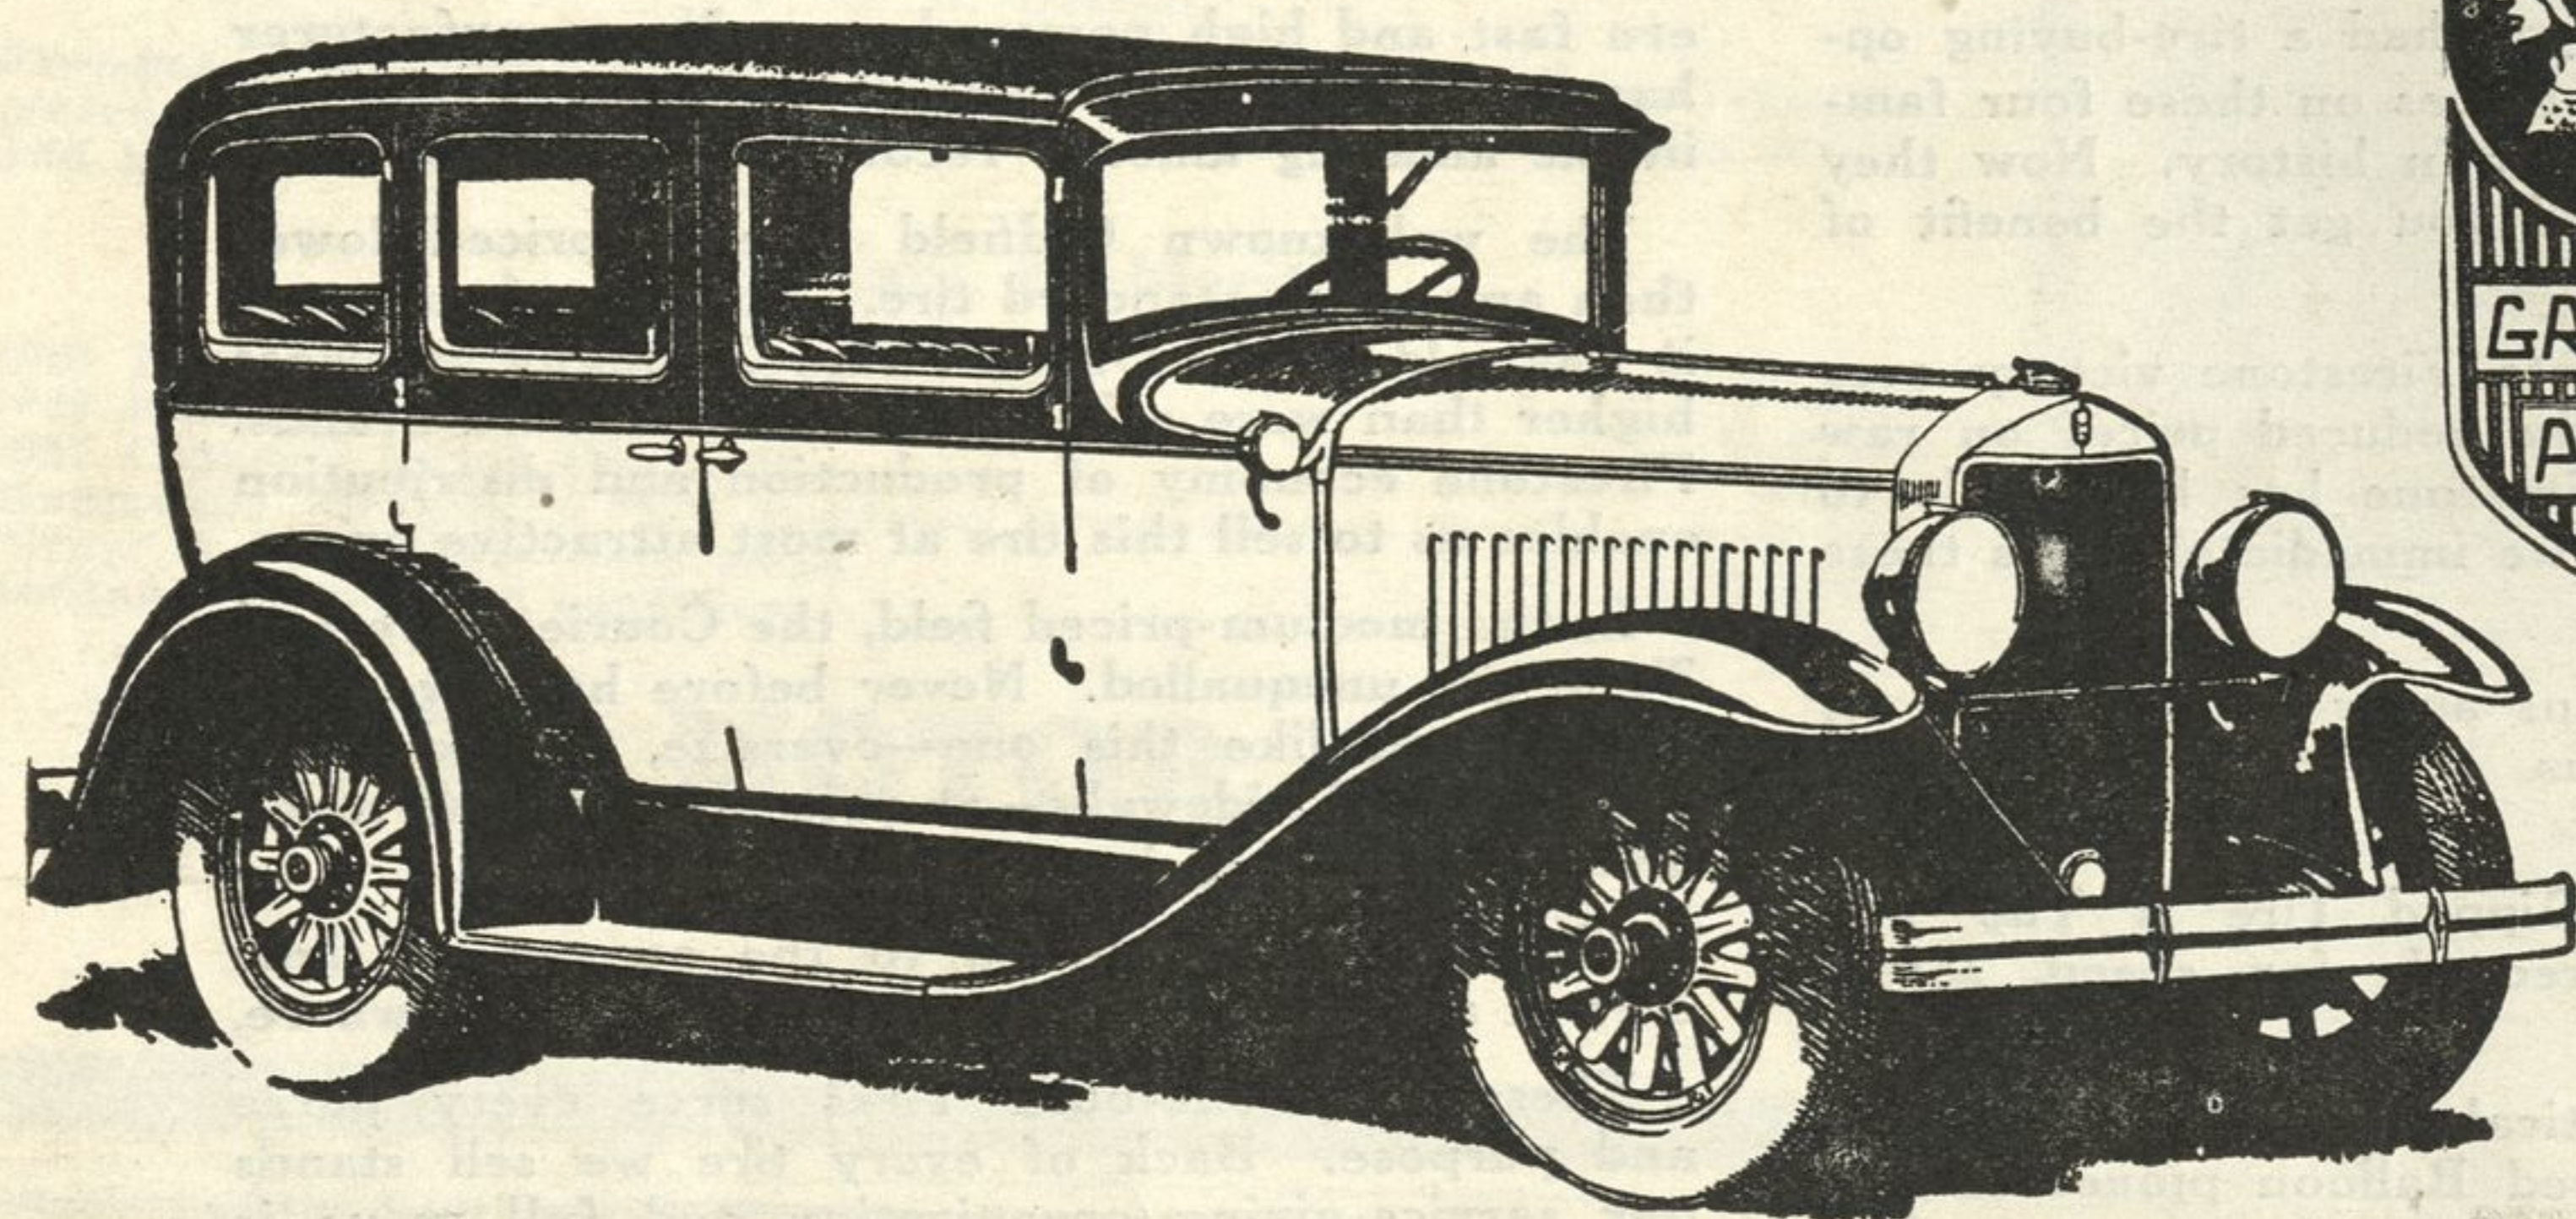

The improvement of Tenth street, from Chestnut street to Sheridan road, with a twenty-foot pavement, contemplated for some time, is to be started soon with a view of having it completed this summer. Township Highway Commissioner J. A. Williams has asked the county to make the necessary survey and prepare plans and specifications for the work, he announced today.

PENCIL BRIDGE

In the days of music boxes and spelling bees, the woman's wail was: "He broke my heart!" This radio and bridge game age finds the same sex wailing (with venom): "He trumped my ace!" Both charges were serious. Many happy homes have become happy hunting grounds through the inclination of hosts to place husband and wife as partners in a bridge game. A slight error at the bridge table has been known to cause stony silences in a household for weeks. But all this business is in the past through the agency of Geoffrey Mott-Smith who has invented a combination of bridge playing and perfect peace! He has extracted the sting from the former and the monotony from the latter. The result is called "Pencil Bridge" and is published by Putnam's.

Not only can this game be played with as much ardor and science as ordinary bridge—but it can be played alone. It is arranged in book form, needing only a pencil as extra equipment. (Specially designed to be carried under arms of commuters and globe-trotters).

Jack Freeman, 185 Chestnut street, left yesterday to spend the summer at Dr. Sprague's camp at Minocqua, Wis.
