Bay Saint Louis Bridge on Old Trail Finished

Travelers over the old Spanish trail will be glad to hear that a highway bridge has recently been completed across Bay St. Louis, between the towns of Bay St. Louis and Henderson Point, Mississippi, says a bulletin issued by the touring bureau of the Chicago Motor club. Although the distance between these two points is not quite two miles, yet, before the completion of the bridge, east and west traffic was obliged to follow a long detour around the bay or depend on ferries.

The Old Spanish trail, extending east and west across the continent, bears annually a heavy traffic burden. In the past the numerous streams and low-lying marshes bordering the Gulf of Mexico, have presented serious difficulties to the motorist.
