Film Shows Germany's Side of the World War

For the first time since America entered the World's war, a motion picture account of Germany's trials and tribulations during the crucial period between 1914 and the Armistice is to be shown. It is called "Germany's Side of the War" and will have its only showing in Chicago at the Playhouse, 410 South Michigan boulevard, beginning Sunday, July 8.

"Germany's Side of the War" is the first authentic, unbiased account of the hardships, the adversities and the forlorn hopes of that country. It depicts the struggle of Germany's soldiers on the front; it sums up the attitude of all the conditions of those who were left behind—it is, in fact, Germany's answer to oft-repeated, but always repudiated, attacks which fanatic propagandists would have the world believe.

Mr. Newcomb was a specialist in real estate law, and was a member of the Chicago Bar association. He was a lineal descendant of Thomas Hooker, one of the founders of Connecticut, and of William Bradford, the second governor of Plymouth colony. He had served the Chicago Mayflower society as historian.

Mrs. Frank Barrett of 55 Essex road, Kenilworth, entertained as her guest, her sister, Mrs. Edward Williams of Indianapolis, for about a week.
