Park

Representatives of the Press club, the Medill school, metropolitan newspapers, and press associations met recently at the Press club, 71 West Monroe street, and issued a call to the Fourth Estate of the world.

Exhibits will be sought from all parts of the world, including those of China, ancient Egypt, and Europe of the Middle Ages, to depict vividly the steps through which journalism has advanced.

Probably the best way to tell just exactly what is proposed is to recite the Press club resolution which inaugurated the project:—

"Whereas, all that is highest and best in the culture of the world will be gathered at Chicago, Ill., U.S.A., in the year 1933 to celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of the incorporation of Chicago, and

"Whereas, there is no more powerful influence known to civilization than a Free Press, and

"Whereas, the time is most opportune for the leading spirits of the Press of every nation to assemble and consider how best the cause of friendship and the interchange of thought can be promoted to the benefit of all peoples; now therefore be it

"Resolved, by this meeting of the members of the Press club of Chicago in regular session assembled, that the officers and directors of this club be. and they are hereby instructed to send its representatives to take part in a Press Congress of the World at Chicago in 1933, during and a part of the Chicago Centennial Celebration, under the auspices of the Press club of Chicago and the Medill School of Journalism of Northwestern university. And be it further

"Resolved, that this Press Congress shall revolve around an exhibit that will portray the evolution of journalism from the hieroglyphics of the stone age to the finest craftsmanship of today, and be it further

"Resolved, that an Advisory council shall be promptly formed, to consist of distinguished representatives of the Fourth Estate from all over the world, and be it further

"Resolved, that Harry Franklin Harrington, dean of the Medill School of Journalism of Northwestern university, be invited to form a committee of representative newspaper men, to formulate a program."

Dean Harrington accepted the chairmanship of the last named committee and at once appointed Al Dunlan, president of the Press club, as vice chairman. Other members of the committee, and their tentative program, will be announced in the near future.

Connecticut Town Finds Novel Use for Old Cars

A novel use for automobiles has been discovered in Thompsonville, Conn., where it is said that automobiles with an original value of nearly a quarter of a million dollars will be tumbled into an abyss during the next few days, in an effort to fill a hole in the roadway which appeared when a stretch of macadam 100 feet long and 50 feet wide dropped through, says a bulletin issued by the Chicago Motor club. Tons upon tons of sand had been put into the gap to no avail, so the selectman hit upon the scheme of buying up all the old cars he could get to fill up the chasm. Over 250 cars have been purchased to date.

National Parks Provide Finest Transportation

There are 663 motor vehicles with a total passenger-carrying capacity of 6,806 operating in national parks, according to information received by the touring bureau of the Chicago Motor club.

A statement issued by the National Park service, Department of the Interior, says: "The greatest number is in the Yellowstone, with 323 cars capable of transporting 3,105 passengers. Glacier and Rocky Mountain National Park, each have 76 passenger-carrying machines.

"Rocky Mountain Park has the edge slightly on Glacier, for its cars can carry a total of 804 visitors, as against 788 in the Glacier cars. Yosemite's fifty-seven cars have a total capacity of 764 people, while Zion's fifty-four carry 582 people.

"In Mount Rainier thirty-one passenger-carrying machines are operated with a capacity for 368 guests, and Grand Canyon has twenty-five cars with a total carrying capacity of 240 visitors."

Mr. and Mrs. Alvar R. Sutter, 827
