Today's Lumber Has Quality —if you buy wisely

STAND BY when some old building (the pride of the town when it was erected fifty years ago) is being demolished in the path of progress—and you'll hear someone say, "Those were the days when they built with real lumber!"

But there's as good lumber now as then—if you buy it wisely. Timber hasn't changed; quality lumber today will last as long as it ever did. No longer, however, do we use beautiful and rare woods for hidden construction—conservation, cost and common sense have changed that idea. Today we build for lasting economy—with quality applied in a way that best fits the purpose.

If we were to stamp our CERTIFIED mark on every square inch of lumber we sell, it would be a truthful representation of our product. Today or in the distant future you'll find in our lumber its own evidence of lasting CERTIFIED quality.
