

Sousa to Bring His Famous Marches to Evanston Sept. 22

The stirring marches of "Sousa's band," which are American institutions, make up a part of the concert programs which the famous band will play in Evanston the afternoon and evening of Saturday, Sept. 22.

Under auspices of the League of Women Voters and the Associate Alumnae of Northwestern university, Sousa and his band will play at Northwestern university gymnasium. Weeks of careful preparation have preceded the concert date. Prices will be as reasonable as possible to enable all lovers of good music to hear the concerts.

While Lt. Com. John Philip Sousa is perhaps best known for his marches, particularly his "Stars and Stripes Forever," which all America hums, whistles and plays, the "March King" has been a producer of other musical compositions. In the course of the three score years that he has been in the music "game," he has written more than 100 marches; but he has also written 62 songs, 10 light operas, 2 overtures, 6 waltzes, 11 fantasies and 15 miscellaneous pieces. He has written various books of musical instruction—and he has also written several novels, and will have another book appearing soon.

Among his marches are "Liberty Bell," "Semper Fidelis," "The Washington Post," "High School Cadets," "King Cotton," "Hands Across the Sea," "Hail to the Spirit of Liberty" and "The Free Lance." His light operas include "The Bride Elect," "Desiree," "The Charlatan," "The Smugglers," "El Capitan," "The Glass Blowers," "Chris and the Wonderful Lamp," "The American Maid" and other works.

Fred Breit, son of the Fred Breits of 422 Essex road, Kenilworth left last Saturday for Canterbury school in New Bedford, Conn., where he will spend the coming year.

Guild Manager

John Allen Stewart, of Evanston, has served the North Shore Theater guild efficiently as manager for several seasons and is continuing in that capacity with the opening of the guild's new season. Plans are under way to make this even more elaborate of plan and interesting of repertoire than have been the past seasons, which have distinguished the guild's players among little theater groups in the middle west.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Peterson of 212 Warwick road, Kenilworth, are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Knoop and Mr. and Mrs. John White of Kenilworth at a house party at their lodge at Mercer, Wis. over Labor day.
