Dollar Day Crowds Break All Records, Merchants Declare

Dollar day in Winnetka, Wednesday of this week proved to be a veritable buying carnival, bringing to the various business districts of the village the largest shopping crowd, in the estimation of many of the merchants, that was ever witnessed here on any one day before.

In many instances merchants who had not anticipated so great a response to their bargain offerings had failed to supply a sufficient quantity of the particular bargain day features, and found their offerings closed out long before the day was over.

The drug stores, the dry goods stores, the shoe stores, the hardware stores, the grocery stores, fur stores, the meat markets, garages, and every line of business make the same enthusiastic report of the day's success, according to Secretary B. G. Eberle, of the Winnetka Chamber of Commerce, under whose auspices the Dollar day was inaugurated.

"It was the first undertaking of this kind by the Chamber," Secretary Eberle, said, "but all of the merchants, and many of the citizens of the village, with whom I have talked, are in favor of holding two days of this nature each year, one in the spring and one in the fall."

SAIL FOR EUROPE

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bard, 1174 Spruce street, sailed from New York for England on September 8, for a five weeks' trip. Mrs. Bard's mother, Mrs. Channon, and her sister, Lilitia, closed their summer home at Highland Park, Mich. this week and are staying at the Bard home. Miss Lilitia will make her debut sometime during the holidays at the Blackstone hotel, probably.

LECTURER SAYS CHINA IS BECOMING MODERN

Dr. Lucius Porter Writes to His Friends in Winnetka

Dr. Lucius Porter of Peking university, who lectured in Winnetka two years ago on China, met Mrs. Valona Brewer of Winnetka on the homeward bound steamer from England. He was on his way to give a series of lectures at Harvard. Mrs. Brewer persuaded him to send the following message to his Winnetka friends.

"Now that the Nationalist Party has gained Peking and ousted the Manchurian War Lord, may we expect China to become peaceful and orderly?"

"This is the question most frequently asked me. The answer I must give is usually disappointing to the questioner. No, we cannot expect China to become peaceful at once. There are many sub-groups, many personal jealousies, as well as deep differences between the Right, the Center and the Left sections of the party. I expect further fighting for months, perhaps for years, between various commanders within the National People's party. There is no outstanding individual leader. The memory and ideals of the 'Great Doctor,' Sun Yat-Sen, hold together various sections of the party in a loose federation. But no leader is as yet in sight.

China Is Modernizing

"Disappointed and puzzled, the inquirer often despairs of understanding the Chinese; if confusion, more civil war, and no leadership are the only results of two years of hard fighting, what achievement is there of any real value to China and the world? But is it, after all, such a puzzle? A great people, the largest homogeneous human group in the world, with a long cultural tradition, is modernizing itself. You cannot in a moment jump a people from medieval feudalism, to the modern conception of a unified, centrally controlled, democratic state. But this is true—and herein lies boundless hope for China's future and for the future world society in which she is to take her place; the Chinese people are on the way to modern-mindedness; a long sea-mile or two along the way to democracy, and science, and healthful co-operation. Watch the repeated waves waves of the swell flowing in from the unfathomed sea of Chinese life. Nothing can withstand that force. Ask your newspapers and magazines to tell you more of the deeper currents of China's life today. Ask them to play up less the trivial melodramatics of party leaders and their quarrels. Try to get the far-seeing eye of the true sea-man, who illuminates the obvious and incidental, and seeks the wide embracing forces of nature's fundamental movements."

Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Conrad of 1418 Scott avenue and their son, John, have returned to their home after spending three weeks in Maine.
