

N. U. Frosh Ready for Psychological Tests Next Monday

Monday morning will mark the beginning of the fall term activities on the Evanston campus of Northwestern university when all freshmen entering the college of liberal arts, school of speech and the school of engineering will take their psychological tests in Fisk hall. An English test will be given in the afternoon.

Following tests in mathematics and foreign languages Tuesday, and an all-freshmen meeting Wednesday morning, the first year students will enroll for the fall term on Thursday. Upper-classmen will register the following day. Regular class work will start Monday morning, September 24.

More rigid entrance requirements for first year women will be in effect this year. Only those from the upper quarter of their high school classes will be eligible for admission, instead of from the upper half as heretofore.

These more stringent requirements not only will tend to equalize the number of men and women on the Evanston campus, but they will enable the university eventually to carry out its policy of requiring all women students to live either in university dormitories or their own homes, according to President Walter Dill Scott. It is estimated that taking only women from the upper quarter of their high school classes will tend to make the ratio of first year women to men about 333 to 450.

"The fact that many men students enter the professional schools after their second year probably is basically responsible for the increase of women students over men in the upper classes in the college of liberal arts," said President Scott. "More rigid entrance requirements for women will tend to equalize this."

"We will not be able this year to conform strictly to our policy of requiring all women students to live either in university dormitories or their own homes, but there will be fewer living in boarding houses. We hope to eliminate the boarding houses as soon as possible and have all women, except those living at home, in university dormitories."

Indications are that the increase in tuition at Northwestern university, effective this year, will not have any appreciable effect on the registration. More applications for admission to the college of liberal arts have been received than last year or the year before. Applications received by the law school point to the largest enrollment the school ever has had. The maximum number that can be accommodated by the law school is 400, and it is believed the registration this year, for the first time, may reach that mark. The medical school, out of 1,500 applications, has accepted 126 first year men, the maximum number that can be taken. Although its freshman class is not yet filled, the dental school is expecting a slight increase over last year.

The total enrollment last year, exclusive of the summer session, was in excess of 10,000. Of this number, approximately 4,700 were registered on the Evanston campus, of whom 2,400 were women.

Miss Jane Adair, 320 Melrose avenue, Kenilworth left recently to motor to Wellesley college where she is entered as a freshman.

Miss Maragaret Korrady of 307 Abbottsford road, Kenilworth will return to Stoneleigh school, Rye Beach, N. H., October 2.

Mrs. Sidney Stevens of Evanston will entertain the Reading circle Monday afternoon.

The Bell System and the Public

THE Bell System recognizes the public requirement for a constantly extended and improved telephone service. To provide this service it has enlisted the savings of hundreds of thousands of investors. In addition to its obligation to the public it has an obligation to its stockholders.

The only sound policy which will meet these obligations is to continue to furnish the best possible service at the lowest cost consistent with financial safety. Earnings must be sufficient to assure the financial integrity of the business. Anything in excess goes toward extending the service or keeping down the rates.

The ideal of the Bell System, of which the Illinois Bell Telephone Company is a part, is the most telephone service and the best, at the least cost to the user. It accepts this responsibility as a public trust.
