

Barry Says—

"When buying Floorcovering do not let your judgment be obscured by cheapness. Remember that that which is good is worth paying for.

"Insist on QUALITY, no matter what you buy. Expect to pay a fair price. A cheap Rug, Carpet or Linoleum is not a bargain if the low price penalizes the quality.

"For economy's sake, pay enough for QUALITY and SERVICE.

"We never sacrifice quality to meet a price."

C. S. Monitor Gives Story of Activities of Oliver Hinsdell

A recent issue of the Christian Science Monitor devotes considerable space to an article concerned with the accomplishments and working methods of Oliver Hinsdell, director of the Little Theater, Dallas, Texas, and former member of the Northwestern university faculty of the School of Speech.

The little theater is now housed in a new playhouse and it is here that Mr. Hinsdell directs his classes in playwriting and play-production, and where he was interviewed for the article. To its writer he expressed himself as enthusiastically interested in native American drama, and he makes it a large part of his work to develop native talent, both as actors and playwrights.

The Dallas theater group, under the direction of Mr. Hinsdell, has won international honors three times with plays of the soil, and he is seeking another such play to take to the New York tournament next year in effort to win back the Belasco cup won first in 1924 and won three successive seasons. He is also seeking such a play to enter in the Texas tournament next year, an event which he organized in 1926 and which Dallas will entertain next spring.

Mr. Hinsdell expressed himself to his interviewer as interested in the success of several players who have gone to Broadway from his group, but as more interested in the development of excellent amateurs, with architects, bankers, school teachers, stenographers, doctors and home managers putting on plays as a "gracious avocation."

Mr. Hinsdell has been at the head of the Dallas group since the summer of 1923, coming from the New Orleans little theater where he built up the membership from 300 to almost 3,000 and also built a charming playhouse. He played professionally in and about Chicago before going south with Jane Cowl, Iden Payne, Conrad Nagel and Lou Tellegan, and in Norman Hackett's stock company. He is author of "Making the Little Theater Pay."

Jock, the Scotty, Is First Class Student

Jock is going to school. Every day Jock starts out from the farm near Muskegon, Mich., where he has been spending his summer vacation, goes down the road in his best manner, sits by the teacher's desk, and learns his lessons.

Sometimes Jock puts on an air of injured dignity because his schoolmates try to spoil a good thing for him. Sometimes a pert woodchuck is just too much for Jock so he scampers off into the woods to give the fellow a good lesson. It peevs Jock when his schoolmates think she only sends them to open the the teacher should punish him but door for the erring pupil. Can't they see that he is doing a great civic good in punishing woodchucks?

Jock's master is Col. Louis Waefelaer of 263 Green Bay road, Glencoe. The little Scotty is the mascot of Troop 23 of the Boy Scouts. Waefelaer is Scoutmaster of the troop. Jock has his own room in the Waefelaer home with his own especially made bed. The room is decorated with many interesting trophies for Jock's particular amusement.
