Sothorn Will Bring Scenes From Hamlet to Varsity Theater

BY ALICE C. D. RILEY

E. H. Sothorn will appear in Evanston under auspices of the Evanston Drama club at the Varsity theater, Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 17.

Don't you remember in the gay nineties way back before the war, when we wore bangs and bustles and played Bach and Beethoven, how we used to go to matinees and watch a gifted young actor who was the matinee idol of the day play the romantic lover in "The Prisoner of Zenda?"

E. H. Sothorn was the leading light comedian of that day. It was after long success in "The Prisoner," "If I Were King," "Lord Cholmonday" and "Under the Red Robe" that he attempted his first important classis role, that of Hamlet. He first acted this role in 1900, and this appearance led to the memorable combination of Sothorn and Marlowe who for 20 years were the leaders of the American stage.

His impending visit to Evanston will offer a program of scenes from three plays: "Hamlet," "Othello" and "Lord Dundreary."

To Give Hamlet Scenes

The Hamlet tradition descends in unbroken line from Burbage, the first Hamlet, to the present day. Shakespeare himself is said to have played the Ghost in a production of the tragedy in 1603 when Henry Taylor was the Dane. Since Sothorn's first appearance in this role, he has acted it more than a thousand times in America and England. He will give on this occasion, the scene between Hamlet and Ophelia and also the closet scene between Hamlet and Queen Gertrude.

The presentation here of scenes from "Othello" will be for Mr. Sothorn in the nature of a premiere in this celebrated role. Sothorn and Marlowe hand planned and prepared this play for production, even to scene design and costumes; but Marlowe's withdrawal from the stage prevented its realization. The scene which Mr. Sothorn will give is that between Othello and Iago in the third act.

To Tell Its History

As an amusing finale for his program, Sothorn will give scenes from "Lord Dundreary" and will relate the interesting history of this comedy which grew out of a minor role in "Our American Cousin," produced by Laura Keane with Mr. Sothorn's father, E. A. Sothorn, as "Dundreary." Mr. Sothorn will doubtless relate the funny story of his father's first experience in this role.

The return of Mr. Sothorn to the stage is an outstanding event of the season; and the Drama club is fortunate in being able to open its season with the presentation of this renowned actor.

Varsity Theater Helps

The club is under deepest obligation to Messrs. Balaban and Katz for the unique privilege of presenting this distinguished actor in their very beautiful Varsity Theater. The club recognizes that this never-before-granted permission comes to it from these public spirited men because of their recognition of the efforts of the Drama club, in cooperation with Northwestern university, to found here in Evanston a real school of the theater: "The Playshop." It is because of its belief in the educational value in this establishment of drama in the curriculum of this great mid-western university, and because of the distinguished service of Mr. Sothorn to the American stage, that these gentlemen have accorded this unheard-of privilege. This will make it possible for university students to have the opportunity of hearing Sothorn.

M. J. Murphy, manager of the Varsity, is giving the Drama club every possible aid. The seat sale to the general public will be opened at the Varsity box office after Oct. 10. Members of the Drama club will be informed by postal of the exact method by which they may obtain without cost their personal tickets for this occasion. Special prices have been arranged for students of the university and high schools. The general public may obtain tickets at the Varsity box office after Oct. 10. Special prices have been made for students of the university, who may obtain their tickets at the office of the School of Speech. These prices will also cover high schools, and arrangements will be made with the schools to cover this.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Wray of 625 Washington avenue, Glencoe, entertained the H and W club last Tuesday evening at dinner and bridge in their home.
