Something New for Central Avenue

TWO Wilmette merchants are going to "put on a front," which interpreted means that the stores of A. S. VanDeusen the grocer and Schultz and Nord, cleaners and dyers which stand "side by each" on Central avenue will present a different appearance after the first of December. It is announced that remodeling contracts were let several days ago and that work is to be started immediately in transforming the building into an attractive structure.

The new front is to be of the Spanish style, and the material will be stucco and concrete blocks. The architect is Edgar Ovat Blake of Evanston, who distinguished himself in drawing the plans for the Lloyd Hollister building.

Both Van Deusen and Schultz and Nord announce that they will continue business as usual while the remodeling is under way.

The picture shows how the building will look when the job is completed.

In remodeling the heating apparatus of your home, cover the steam, vapor, hot water or hot air pipes with asbestos, and also the furnace and boiler with the same.

Evanston Works on Plans for Widening West Railroad Ave.

Evanston has drawn up tentative plans showing the possibility of widening West Railroad avenue, Ald. Dyer Bent told the North End Improvement association Thursday night. The city's attitude, as later explained by Mayor Bartlett, is that it wishes to be in a position to widen the street from McCormick road north at the same time that West Railroad is opened up north of its present terminus in Wilmette, but not before. He pointed out that the proper procedure for improving West Railroad is for the property owners who would be assessed to present a petition to the board of local improvements.

To discuss widening of West Railroad avenue was the chief purpose of Lambert Kaspers, president of the Improvement association, and the directors in calling the meeting and Ald. Bent's announcement came as a surprise.

According to the speaker the plans would continue the McCormick link by widening West Railroad from McCormick north to Isabella and also eventually south from the McCormick intersection to Ridge avenue. The possibility that the north link will be accomplished first was pointed out because no condemnation proceedings would be necessary.

County aid in the cost of the widening is expected, since it has been given to Wilmette, Winnetka and Hubbard Woods in their projects of widening West Railroad. Evanston's plan is to make a 50 foot roadway of which the county will probably pay for the center 20 feet.

Earl Orner, president of Wilmette, addressed the meeting telling of the widening of the road in his village. He stated that Wilmette's paving and widening of West Railroad would be completed this week with the exception of a short strip in the north of the village.
