

3,000 VILLAGERS ROMP AT HALLOWE'EN PARTY

Then there was an Italian with a grind organ.

The musical show was made fascinating by the barker who stood out in front yelling "Best show in the house. We don't begin until we fill up and when we fill up we go—and how! Step right this way, folks." The Punch and Judy show presented a never-failing appeal as did the displays of magic. For the tiniest tots was the story telling group conducted in a quiet corner away from the noise and screams of bigger folk. When 10:30 o'clock came around every one of the three thousand was glad to eat ice-cream cones and go home to bed.

3,000 Attend Frolic

So ended a hilarious evening spent in the Community house, with nearly three thousand people kept out of mischief and having a better time than if they were out "raising Cain." The total cost to the Community center was less than two hundred dollars against the single item of four hundred dollars worth of slashed tires reported last year in one of the nearby villages. Due to a staff of enthusiastic committee workers headed by C. W. F. Davies, the entire village had more fun and did less damage than could be expected from such a peppy crowd.

The committee heads were as follows:—Jack Anderson, gymnasium stunts; S. Bowles King, S. R. Logan, Eugene Rummier, refreshments; Burton Atwood, motion pictures; Mrs. Glen Bull, decorations; Miss Alta Gahan and Skokie Public school children, posters; Bob Doepel, chamber of horrors; Mrs. Thomas N. Brooks, grab bag; Charles J. Eastman, sleight of hand, Punch and Judy, and musical shows; Al Eckart, Capt. Kidd's Buccaneers; Carroll Murphy, tickets; A. Lee Adams, special electrical surprises; Kathryn Flinn, witches; William T. Wersted, volunteer police; George Walkey, grind organ; Tom Scott, bag-pipes; Fletcher Marsh, ducking for apples; Bill Fisher, house of mystery; Jessica West, story-telling; Mrs. Eloise W. Wortley, publicity.

Mrs. Mangan Pays Third Visit Here; Battles Policemen

Mrs. Elizabeth Mangan, residing on County Line road, paid another visit to Winnetka early Monday morning, arriving shortly after midnight, parking her car on Sheridan road at Fuller lane.

Officers J. H. Luensman and William Cazal constituted the reception committee and Mrs. Mangan made the village a donation of $50.00 and also a little extra for costs, as suggested by Justice of the Peace R. E. Sinsheimer. The charge against Mrs. Mangan was that she was drunk and disorderly. The disorderly part of the charge came as a result of her actions when the officers suggested she go to the police station, to which she objected and against which she staged a regular battle.

This is Mrs. Mangan's third appearance in the village under similar conditions during the past two years.

A real estate license law for Indiana will be urged at the coming session of the state legislature by the Indiana Real Estate Association, according to action taken by the Association at its annual convention just held at Gary.
