

Husky Purdue Men Next Opponents of Powerful Wildcats

Northwestern and Purdue, traditional rivals since 1895, will meet in their twenty-first contest at Dyche stadium here Saturday. In the twenty games played to date each team has won an even ten games. The Wildcats won the first game back in 1895 by 24 to 6 and dropped the last one in 1927 18 to 6.

Both teams are expected to be in tip-top condition for the forthcoming engagement. Purdue had little trouble in disposing of Case with its reserve team 19 to 0 last Saturday. Northwestern had a tough encounter with Minnesota but escaped with only minor bruises.

The Boilermakers will send one of their strongest teams to Evanston. With such stellar ball carriers as "Pest" Welch, Caraway and Harmseon, it is doubtful whether Purdue has had such a backfield since the days of Elmer Oliphant.

Welch will perform at left halfback while Harmseon will function at quarterback. Eb Caraway and Al Guthrie, two of the steadiest players on the squad, will complete the backfield.

Coach Hanley will start much the same lineup that turned back Minnesota Saturday. "Yatz" Levison who called signals so satisfactorily and also speared a number of passes will again pilot the eleven. Bill Griffin, little sophomore half who has turned in such capable performances against Illinois and Minnesota seems to have cinched the left halfback position.

Capt. Walter Holmer, one of the outstanding fullbacks in the conference this year, will be seen at his old position while Bill Calderwood, who transformed a Minnesota fumble into a touchdown for his mates, will start at right half.

Tom Verdell, senior and Frank Baker, sophomore, are likely to start at the end posts while Hazon and Sinkler will perform at tackle. Anderson and Sullivan seem to have the call on the guard positions while Mickey Erickson will function at center.

Saturday will be Dads' day at Northwestern and several thousand fathers are expected to attend the contest. They will be seated in special sections of the stands at the game.

Tickets for the game are still on sale at the ticket office in Evanston and at Marshall Fields and Spauldings in Chicago. A large number of good seats are still available and will be on sale until game time Saturday.

A photograph of the delegates taken on the grounds and benediction in the faculty building closed the conference.

Before Winter Comes Begin That Rock Garden

FEW landscape settings exceed in fascination the ever-alluring rock garden. There is something about its formality that marks its owner as one of sophisticated tastes—while in contradiction it has a careless informality that appeals to the lover of nature in her wilder and stranger moods.

Our experience in designing and building rock gardens will be of interest to those contemplating the addition of this pleasing touch to their own home grounds.
