New Trier Teams Find Stiff Schedule in 1928-29 Debates

Two debate teams to represent New Trier High school in inter-school contests this year will be chosen following the final try-outs next Friday.

Preliminary tryouts were held three weeks ago, and from the eight contestants who tried out at that time only one, Dorland Davis, was assured a place as a regular on one of this year's teams. Davis is editor of the New Trier News, student publication at the high school. This is his first year in high school debate work.

John Erickson, a member of the team which defeated Cleveland in 1927 when that team was champion of Ohio, also will be one of New Trier's debate representatives this year. New Trier and Cleveland will clash for the third time next May. Thus far each school has won one of the inter-sectional debates.

Both boys and girls are eligible to try out for places on one of New Trier's teams, each of which will be composed of three members. More than twenty students early this week had signified their intention of competing in the tryouts. They are: Lois Goldstein, Helen Bosley, Betty Holmes, James Edmonds, Marjorie Koenig, Olin Sethness, Bill Horsting, Earl Lingle, Bob Livingston, George Weidinger, James Alden, Albert Denton, Howard Bleser, Margaret Washburn, Phil von Ammon, Lowell Comee, Jim Alsdorf, Lawrence Doty, Bill Rich, C. Phillips, Joe Rich, and William Connor.

In addition to the Cleveland debate, New Trier has scheduled debates with Urbana and Roosevelt High school of Chicago. The Urbana contest will be the fifth of a series between the two schools. Thus far New Trier has won three out of four.
