

Barrie Comedy Revived at the Goodman Theatre

An interesting revival took place at the Goodman Memorial theater, Chicago, on Tuesday evening, December 4, when Barrie's comedy of ten years ago, "Dear Brutus" was presented. Roman Bohnen appeared as Dearth, the artist. Katherine Krug was lovely as his dream child in the forest scene. The play was staged under the direction of B. Iden Payne who also acted the part of Purdie. Throughout, the production was a delightful one.

Government Given Help in Deciding Life of Buildings

Recommendations as to the number of years which practical experience points may be expected to be the normal life of various types of buildings will be made to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue this week by the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

The Association will make the recommendation at the request of the Bureau which has asked for such a statement in order to enable it to set up a schedule of normal rates of depreciation and obsolescence of buildings for the purpose of determining allowable deductions in the making of income tax returns.

In preparation for the making of the recommended schedule of normal life expectancy rates for various types of structures the Association called on its member boards in cities throughout the country to give the opinion of a committee of their most experienced real estate observers as to actual length of life which buildings of the type specified have been found to have in their communities.

Reports from all cities so given have been tabulated and analyzed by a special committee of the Association working through the machinery of its research department.

The findings of the committee, of which Walter C. Schmidt, of Cincinnati, is chairman, have been approved by the board of directors of the Association and have been authorized to be submitted to the Treasury Department.

The findings of the committee constitute the most careful study that has ever been attempted of the normal expectation as to the length of useful life of office buildings, stores, warehouses, factories, apartment buildings, single family dwellings, theaters, hotels, and other types of structures under every type of construction.
