Mallinckrodt Cage Teams Battle in Tie Encounter

The third of a series of interclass basketball games played last Tuesday at Mallinckrodt High school, put the senior winning team to a severe test. The juniors, not heard of so much before as keen players, held the score in their favor until the last quarter. The seniors then putting up a strong fight managed to pull up until at the end of the game the teams were tie. Another game between these teams will decide the winner.

Mrs. Riley's Chinese Play Will Be Staged at Evanston Club

Alice C. D. Riley's fantasy after the Chinese manner, "Little New Moon," has been chosen for the pre-holiday play to be presented by the Fine Arts department of the Evanston Woman's club.

It will be presented Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 11, and this performance will precede the three Playshop productions to be staged at the School of Speech the evenings of Dec. 12, 13 and 14. These are devoted primarily to the North Shore Theater guild, members of the play-writing classes and School of Speech students, so the week's performances will thoroughly cover the attention of the various groups which have active interest in or are particular patrons of the drama in Evanston and on the north shore.

One of the interesting features of the fantasy will be the costumes. These are being designed by Miss E. Louise Guernsey who has made intensive study, not only for the cut and color correct for the characters, but also for the symbols which form the decorations. The motif which decorates the costume of Key Fah, for example, the gardener of the Emperor, means "a garden," and the one which the juggler, Lee Sing, will wear, means "magic." In the real Chinese theater the robes used are truly regal, their cost often mounting into thousands of dollars. The Playshop hopes in their production to create beauty of color, line and design, in simple materials.

The great bronze gong used in all the magic music for "Little New Moon," is an antique temple gong brought from China for the production. The beauty of the music of the Chinese gong is held unrivaled by that of any other gongs. Percussion instruments of both metal and wood will be much used in the Chinese orchestra which will play at the several productions.

There will be four uses of the dance in "Little New Moon." The Snowmaiden with her cold and the Desert Winds with his heat are part of the dramatic effort of the Juggler to destroy the chrysanthemum. As they are cosmic forces, their dance-forms are free of Chinese restrictions. The battle dance with which Yinyin repels the Snowmaiden, is based on the stylized dance of the Chinese, as is the chrysanthemum dance given by Key Wing. The juxtaposition of two styles makes interesting contrast.
