"Masks of the Devil" at Norshore for Week

"Masks of the Devil," with John Gilbert, Eva von Berne, Alma Rubens, Ralph Forbes and others will be at the Norshore this Saturday, December 8, for one week. Gilbert plays the role of Baron Reiner. He is a bandit of hearts, working his racket in smart Viennese society. The picture is based on the novel, "The Masks of Irwin Reiner," by Wassermann.

Eva von Berne, the Hungarian dancer whom Norma Shearer is said to have "discovered" while on her trip to Europe, does well for one of so little film experience. Alma Rubens' dark beauty is an addition to the picture.

The stage show for next week is to be called "Dancing Along," with Al Kvale and the Collegians presiding as usual.

"Do Your Duty" Is Saturday Offering at Teatro del Lago

"Do Your Duty," comedy starring Charlie Murray, is the attraction this Saturday at the Teatro del Lago. Murray, always to be depended upon for providing plenty of merriment, is at his best as a cop. Doris Dawson, as ingenue lead, is charming. She is Murray's daughter, and is to marry a young policeman played by Charlie Delaney. The wedding is in a police station and is almost disrupted because Murray fails to show up. But he gets there at the finish, having redeemed himself by capturing the crooks who had framed him earlier in the story.

Richard Arlen and Louise Brooks play the leading roles in "Beggars of Life," this Sunday's Teatro del Lago offering. Arlen has the part of Jim, who isn't a professional tramp, but is beating his way to an uncle's home in Canada, and Miss Brooks is Nancy, a girl who kills a man to escape from him and then runs away to escape the law. Dressed as a boy, Nancy accompanies Jim as his "kid brother." The chivalrous Jim treats her with brotherly care and affection, which blossoms into love. All goes well until the two join a band of tramps who easily guess the sex of the "kid." The picture stands out distinctly as to plot and manner of presentation.

"Power," coming to the Teatro Monday and Tuesday, with William

Boyd, Alan Hale, and Jacqueline Logan playing the leads, presents Mr. Boyd and Mr. Hale as a rival pair of lady-killing dam workers engaged in construction work just outside a small western town where many pretty damsels flourish. Into their lives comes a sweet young thing from Jersey City, who performs deft feats with their hearts and pocketbooks. The boys "swear off," when up steps another little stranger, and it's the same thing over again.

Vitaphone Presentation Pleases Alcyon Patrons

Much interest has been shown in the presentation of vitaphone and movie-tone subjects at the Alcyon theater in Highland Park. On the opening day last Sunday crowds thronged the theater and flooded through the lobby to the street.

For the coming week the Alcyon announces three sound picture programs, all of which have received high praise from movie critics. Tomorrow and Monday the glorious romance in sound, "Lilac Time," starring Colleen Moore and Gary Cooper, will be shown. In addition there will be a program of talking and musical acts on the vitaphone, including Martinelli, the six Brown brothers, and William Demarest in a comedy skit, "When the Wife's Away."

Cecil B. DeMille's masterpiece, the "King of Kings," is booked for Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, and Al Jolson in "The Jazz Singer" for Friday and Saturday.
