

GIVEN BUDD MEDAL

Frank E. Miller Is Honored for Success in Saving Man's Life

For his efforts in saving the life of a man after all hope had been given up, Frank E. Miller, 2306 Hastings avenue, Evanston, an employe of the Public Service company of Northern Illinois, was presented with the Britton I. Budd medal for the saving of human life at the annual meeting of the employes in Chicago Wednesday, December 5.

Mr. Miller, using the Shaefer prone pressure method of artificial respiration, worked for over an hour on Paul Ziegner of Highland Park who had been overcome by carbon monoxide gas after working on his car in a closed garage and revived him. The incident occurred last spring. Ziegner recovered his strength completely within a few days of the experience.

The Britton I. Budd medal was established in 1926 by Mr. Budd, president of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, as an award to employes of the Public Service company and other companies with which Mr. Budd is associated, who succeed in saving the life of anybody, anywhere, at any time. The medal is intended to serve a three-fold purpose. It is a token of appreciation and honor for a noteworthy service; it stimulates interest in first aid instructions, which are given to all employes of the Public Service company, and it directs attention to examples of prompt action on the part of employes, in meeting emergencies.

Feature Week Is Next on Program at Chicago Opera

Production of outstanding features in operatic repertoire will mark the seventh week of the Civic Opera company's season at the Auditorium in Chicago. Numbered among the performances are two premieres for the year and the remainder of the program consists of works that have met with spectacular success at previous presentations.

The week begins with the Sunday matinee performance of Wagner's "Die Walkure," which was called by critics the finest presentation of that masterpiece that has ever been seen on any stage when it was first given last Saturday. The work is enhanced by the appearance of Mme. Frida Leider, great German soprano, who instantly won the praise of her audience when she appeared for the first time in America as Brunnhilde in "Die Walkure" one week ago. Other notable artists in the cast are Mme. Maria Olszewska, another renowned German singer, Forest Lamont, Eva Turner, Alexander Kipnis and Edouard Cotreuil. Mme. Leider will be heard Wednesday evening as Rachel in "The Jewess" by Havley.

"The Tales of Hoffman," which was recently produced in striking new settings, will be given Tuesday evening and "Lakme," in which Alice Mock achieved great success last Sunday, is the attraction for Monday evening, Miss Mock appearing again in the difficult leading part, with Tito Schipa singing the role of Gerald.

"Boris Godunoff," the great Russian feature of the Civic Opera company's repertoire, will be presented, with Vanni-Marcoux in the title role, Thursday evening. "Il Trovatore" with Eva Turner, Antonio Cortis and Richard Bonelli in the stellar parts, is scheduled for Saturday evening, and for the Saturday matinee there will be "L'Elisir d'Amore"—The Elixir of Love—by Donizetti. This opera, with "The Jewess," constitute the premieres of the week and both are being eagerly awaited by patrons of opera.

For Sunday afternoon, the performance so well suited to the convenience of residents of communities surrounding Chicago, "Carmen" will be given, with Coe Glade, the charming young Chicago contralto, appearing in the name role, Rene Maison as Jose and Cesare Formichi as Escamillo.
