For the Book Lover

The easiest of all gifts to buy . . . if wide choice of possibilities means anything. But sometimes, if you love books, too, you're tempted by so many things . . .

Oxford publications—standard works in fine calfskin bindings, the backs decorated with gold.

From the Medici Press, Canterbury Tales in a sumptuous gold-decorated binding at $25. New editions of Sterne's Tristram Shandy—collected works of many a reader's favorite author—new travel books—new books that achieved instant fame—

And hundreds upon hundreds to choose from in this Booklover's Book Section, near the gifts—

Just Inside the West Davis Street Door

—and if you find it entirely too difficult to make up your mind about what book to give, you may choose a pair of handsome book ends, in bronze. Many are reproductions of famous sculptures. Quite moderately priced, all of them.
