MINNESOTA.

Dear Editor,
A note in the Montreal Daily Witness suggests the necessity of giving a few statements about this Western Land. The Witness states that "Minneapolis and St. Paul" were "under snow" on Nov. 28th, and intimated the uselessness of making excursions westward under such conditions.

When in Canada the smile was often provoked by "American blunders regarding Canada." Now the smile is on the other cheek. The fact is there has not fallen sufficient snow this season, if all that has come had remained, to afford a sleigh ride. We have had a few falls of snow, ranging from the thinnest coat of white to three inches. But the temperature moderated with the falling of the snow, so that in a few hours nought was left but patches of dirty snow in ditches under fences and on the cold, shady side of the foothills or bluffs.

From August 25th, there have been but 13 days of unbroken sunshine. The sun shines clear and warm day after day at time of writing. Dec. 12th, the atmosphere is mild and sky as soft as our finest October days. It has been Indian summer for over two months. One week was damp and cloudy, otherwise the usual Minnesota weather, frosty nights and clear sunny days has been the rule. With the exception of this open Dec. natives tell me they have experienced the customary Minnesota autumn.

And how about the soil, people, &c. asks one.
The soil of Minnesota as a whole can not be surpassed by any equal area in the world for fertility and agricultural possibilities. You can ride for hundreds of miles and see only dark sandy loam fit for the best garden culture. There is plenty of it for sale from $10 to $40 per acre. Minnesota is capable of feeding the entire population of Canada, in other words of supporting 5,000,000 people. Southern Minnesota is the paradise of farming. Northern Minnesota is more broken and less adapted to agricultural pursuits. But those who are not afraid of timber lands, make good homes and the mines and lumber industries offset the advantages of the plainsmen in the south.

I confess to have fallen in love at sight with the boundless billowy prairies. Such outlook! Such outreach of earth and sky! No wonder the people of the plains are aggressive and liberal. A man must be peculiarly constructed who can remain contracted in his views under such a sky, and with such a landscape before him. Let no one imagine the Minnesota prairies means level monotony. No more so than the ocean's dead level. The native woods, willow, oak, birch, hickory and balsam of Gilead, cotton wood trees are plentiful. Soft maple is plentiful also at Brownsdale. Where I spent the first few weeks of my advent. Next you could not see the village from the railway for maple and willow groves. The farmers have planted small orchards and sugar apples and these are flanked with two or four rows of willow or cotton wood trees so that the homes and buildings are snugly nestled in their shady shelter, making the landscape very picturesque. A grain you can drive for miles and find the roads flanked with stately growing trees. Such a drive is from Brownsdale to William, 70 miles, for which is an average.

The water is good. The wells vary in depth of the water in the ground. I have found no difference in the water from that of the average well in Canada. The home of the buffalo and deer's head and has plenty of water and grass. The people are of various races. The American and Canadian are the leaders in enterprise. There are 10,000 Canadians in Minneapolis. There are about 40 in the ministry in the Minnesota conference. As a whole, their history is not such as to shame the bearer, nor disgrace the Maple Leaf. There were 11,000,000 people in the world in 1880. There are about 100,000,000 people in the world in 1889. They are about two-thirds Catholics, the rest are Lutherans. As a consequence we have a very original and liberal idea of the Sabbath and religion. To be acquainted with them is to understand why the Americans have missions in Germany.

There is that condition of life, which such a mixing of nations and creeds is likely to produce. We are in a moral ferment. The "leaven of American christian or christian American civilization cannot rest until the lump is leavened." Between now and that day which will witness the final issue of this heterogeneous amalgam, there will be much self-denial, and perhaps sacrifice. But let no one suppose christianity will lose. Truth is most vigorous when oppressed. As a result of these constitutions, christians are alert and aggressive. There is more awing, more "go." I may add just here, a dull, take-it-easy, pulp it is very quickly extinguished. Life is intense. This cannot be avoided. People that have opened the new county, dotted it with villages, towns and cities from the hamlet of "four corners" to the "twin city" with over half a million people and industries, streets, public buildings and commerce second to none, and that did their contingent share in the civil war, and all this within 35 years, of necessity have to move fast.

As to crops and markets, I may remark that the one depends upon the circumstances and ability of the farmer, the latter upon causes beyond the State. Two causes have affected the farmer unfavorably. One is the one crop system. For years wheat was the staple. This required no extensive system of culture. As a result, farmers kept one or two cows and horses for the plough and reaper. If the crop was good all was well, but a failure meant total failure. A few years of failure in the wheat fields put Minnesota back fully ten years. Now general farming is coming into fashion. As a result there is general success, and Minnesota is not likely to be retarded in her advance as she has been. If attended a County show in southern Minnesota. In a few years it will match a Provincial show. The grounds are larger than Ottawa's and as large as Toronto's. The foundations aim at an annual exhibit equal to some I have seen at these named places. There is nothing lost in aiming at big things. Oats average 40 bushels, wheat 25, clover (from second crop) seed 4, timothy 6, corn 30 to 40 bushels and other products in equal ratios.

You can see where, as everywhere, the difference made by the difference in men and methods.
The markets and prices are determined by the distance and competition. The freight is the drawback to the farmer. Time and increase of population will remedy this. Minnesota farmers are at a disadvantage for a while from the competition of new states. The latter have thin populations compared with their productive power. They must find their markets beyond their territory. This handicaps the farmers of older States. For a while this must be endured. Meanwhile those older States are turning attention to products the newer States cannot produce yet. There's money in blooded stock. Those who will undertake this department of agriculture have fine prospects.

The climate is good. The extremes of heat and cold reach higher and lower by a few degrees than in Canada. But the air is so much drier that they are not felt as in Canada. We have had one keen night. Four below zero, yet I walked that evening, having only the clothes I wore in Oct. in Ontario. I have had no occasion so far for other than my light fall overcoat, felt hat and have not put on my gloves half a dozen times since coming here. This is of course for walking.
My health is rather on the gain, yet I am doing full work. I have a pleasant relationship in my church and people, and opportunities for doing good. Life is freer here than east. Men are not concerned so much about what you think and what you know and a man is measured of what he does. Audiences are very restless under a dull speaker and are not likely to come under the affliction a second time. But they will endure a good deal if the speaker is saying something and saying it in an agreeable way. They may not accept your conclusions, but they'll come again if they believe the speaker believes what he says and says in a pleasant manner. For many who have means to purchase land and go into debt, there are good openings in Minnesota. For young men, I think the chances are as good here as anywhere. There is a future before this west, greater than any state or place east of the Mississippi. He who runs may read this. It is a simple fact. Very few who come west, ever return east. It stays. Rest is sufficient for wise men. It is a brave place for a lover, tramp and dead-headed, or one calling, but as good a place as can be found for plucky, cheerful workers.

Bicker's Anti-Consumptive Syrup stands at the head of the list for all diseases of the throat and lungs. It is a specific in breaking up a cold, cough is soon subdued, tightness of the chest is relieved, even the worst case of Consumption is relieved, while three or four times it may be said never to return. It is a medicine prepared from the active principles of plants, several medicinal herbs, and can be depended upon for all pulmonary complaints.

HOSPITAL REMEDIES.

What are they? The growth of intelligence in medical matters has given rise to a demand for a class of genuine, reliable medicine. The opportunity of the ignorant quack, who grew rich curing everything out of a single bottle, has passed. To supply satisfactorily this demand this list of remedies has been created. They are the favorite prescriptions of the most famous medical practitioners of the day, gathered from the hospitals of London, Paris, Berlin and Vienna. Prescriptions which cost the patients of these specialists from $25 to $100 are here offered prepared and ready for use at the nominal price of one dollar each. Not one of them is a cure all; each one has only the reasonable power of curing a single disease, and each one keeps its contract. Sufferers from Catarrh, Disordered Lungs, Bronchitis, Asthma, Consumption, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, Liver and Kidney Complaints, Fever and Ague, Neuritis, Female Weakness, Leucorrhoea or Nervous Debility should send stamp for descriptive catalogue to Hospital Remedy Co., 393 1/2 West King St., Toronto, Canada. If your druggist does not keep these remedies remit price and we will send direct.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

The Special Announcement which appeared in our columns some time since, announcing a special arrangement with B. J. Kendall Co., of Enosburgh, Falls, Vt., publishers of "A Treatise on the Horse and his Diseases," whereby our subscribers were enabled to obtain a copy of that valuable work free by sending their address to B. J. KENDALL CO. (and enclosing a two-cent stamp for mailing same) is renewed for a limited period. We trust all will avail themselves of the opportunity of obtaining this valuable work. To every lover of the Horse it is indispensable, as it treats in a simple manner, all the diseases which afflict this noble animal. Its phenomenal sale throughout the United States and Canada, make it standard authority. Mention this paper when ordering for the Treatise.

Respectfully dedicated to the Daughter and Grandchildren of the late Alexander Hunter, in the death of their mother he departed this life Dec. 6th, 1889, aged 64 years.
Your father long has been at rest.
Your brothers, too, by death removed.
While you have grieved, their spirits rest.
She lived alone in solitude.

A rural country home was hers.
Where her wants were well supplied.
But it was best that she should leave.
The place where her companion died.
Her closing years were suffering years.
But patiently she bore her pain.
Securely anchored on the rock.
We wait here for her a life of shame.

With loving heart and generous hand.
She ministered to the suffering.
Not was she ever known to spurn.
The needy supplicant from her door.
The cause of grief lay near her heart.
His word she prized, in truth believed.
And with a comraded hand.
She gave as she herself received.

The church has lost in her a friend.
The poor a helper in distress.
The neighborhood in which she lived.
Will mourn her absence from the land.
I know your hearts are sore.
Not is it strange that you should weep.
Your children's feet are bathed in tears.
Because their love for her was sweet.

But mourn you not as without hope.
She sleeps in Jesus' free from pain.
When Christ, who is her life, appears.
With him is heaven's such bliss.
Then cherish loving memories.
Of mother who is now at rest.
And in submission sweetly say.
Our Father know what is her bliss.
Her daughters, children, mourners all.
Prepare in life for future bliss.
The world is full with all its joys.
Will be the rest of this life.
No home in heaven if not prepared.
No earthly love, once meet again.
No golden crown, or diadem.
No golden you're washed from every stain.
Christ die for us, bring us home.
His blood alone can make you free.
Add it, you for a heaven's bliss.
