Miss Ella and Maud Smith, who have been visiting friends for a couple of weeks, returned to their home in Essex. The farmers of the Canadian Northwest will require about 18,000 manure this season to assist in taking off their large harvest. A young man on Saturday morning had hired an outfit from McNeill's livery, Richmond Hill, and so far has failed to return it. County Constable Burns is looking up the case. The practical failure of the fruit crop in England, which is without parallel in the memory of Covent Garden, affords an opportunity for Canadian fruit growers' vast crops. English plums, cherries, pears and apples have been destroyed, owing to unfavorable weather. The Minister of Justice has a bill before Parliament amending the Code making it an indictable offence, punishable by one year's imprisonment or a fine of $100, to make a false affidavit or by means of any other fraud. This is particularly designed to meet the case of boarding-house and hotel frauds, and perhaps for the man who orders his paper stopped and will not pay up arrears of subscription. Mr. Guy L. Wheeler, the Canada Cycle and Motor Company's clerk, who was charged with stealing coaster brakes from the factory and selling them at bicycle stores, pleaded guilty in the Toronto Police Court on Tuesday and in view of the fact that he had previously borne a good character, that he had made restitution and had spent nearly two weeks in jail, the Magistrate let him go on suspended sentence.

Stouffville baseball team are busily engaged practicing every evening on the sporting grounds, and have developed so much skill and muscle that they are now prepared to try conclusions with the teams in neighboring towns. Don't all challenge at once. A little girl tells what she knows about King Solomon in the following story: King Solomon was a man who lived ever so many years ago, and the country in which he governed was the whole push. King Solomon built King Solomon's Temple, and was the father of all the Masons. He had 700 wives and 200 lady friends, and that is why there are so many Masons in the world. Organized labor has at last come in to conflict with the government of the United States on a vital question that may extend into the field of national politics and range the labor unions all over the country in opposition to the Republican party. The issue has arisen over the case of the foreman Miller in the government printing office, who was expelled from the Bookbinders' Union, who also demanded and obtained his dismissal from government employment. He appealed to the head of the department, and his case was referred to the President, who ordered him to be reinstated. The union, then made known its displeasure that if the President would not withdraw his order all its members would quit work in a body. A further intimation was given that the point was one which the union could not yield and that if the government persisted in making the printing department open to non-union workmen, organized labor through out the country would unite in opposition to the re-election of Mr. Roosevelt and against the Republican party generally. The question whether the labor unions or the government will rule in the departments is now squarely presented for settlement. So far the President has given no sign of repeding from his decision, and it is believed that the union has made a mistake in forcing the issue and making a threat it may not be able to implement, and which practically places the government in a position where it must insist on maintaining its authority.
