

REPLACES PARTS OF FACES DESTROYED BY WOUNDS IN WAR

Mouths, Jaws and Even Eyelids Made to Move Naturally by British Sculptor

A despatch from London says: Derwent Wood, the distinguished British sculptor, who enlisted as a private in the army medical corps at the beginning of the war, is now turning his talent to a unique use. All his leisure time is at present employed in replacing the parts of men's faces destroyed by wounds in battle. These include mouths, jaws and even eyelids, all of which he has made to move naturally.

He has just finished remaking a nose for a soldier whose nose was blown away below the bridge. His addition, which he prepared of electrically treated metal, is so perfect that where it is joined is absolutely imperceptible, and the patient has regained his sense of smell.

Wood is now giving up most of his time to this work, and is able to treat ten cases daily. Surgeons who never thought that a sculptor's art could be adapted to this work are now absolutely amazed at the remarkable results Wood has obtained.

DASH FROM KIEL EXPECTED ANY DAY

London Naval Expert Looks for an Early Battle in the North Sea

A London cable to the New York Tribune says: "A high naval authority told the Tribune correspondent of a belief widely held in Admiralty circles that the German fleet may make a dash for the open sea at any time now, giving as a reason for this not only the pressure of political opinion in Germany, but the innumerable recent reports all pointing to the preparation of a combined German naval, aerial and military offensive, with the object of forcing peace and impressing neutrals. Vice-Admiral Reinhardt Scheer has been appointed commander of the German battle fleet in succession to Admiral von Pohl, who, after holding the position for a year, is retiring on account of ill-health."

London Papers Demand that Fisher Resume Naval Command

A despatch from London says: The British Weekly, which recently suggested Lord Northcliffe as Air Defence Minister, now cries for Lord "Jacky" Fisher to resume the naval command, "lacking whom," says the Weekly, "England will lack the greatest war brain she has bred since Nelson. The greatest war ever waged has produced very few war brains. Only one man has beaten the Germans in brain power, and that man is Lord Fisher."

A despatch from London says: A suggestion was made in the House of Commons on Thursday that African natives of Zululand and Basutoland be permitted to volunteer for the campaign against German East Africa. This plan was rejected by Harold J. Tennant, Parliamentary Under-Secretary for War, who said he considered the enlistment of natives as undesirable and impracticable.

FOE BANKS IN TROUBLE.

Financial Pinch is Affecting Some Big German Institutions.
A despatch from the London Daily Express correspondent in Geneva says: "A banker who has just returned here after spending several months in Germany tells me that the principal banks in the chief towns on the Rhine, and also in Munich and Dresden, are in serious financial difficulties and some big crashes may be expected within the next three months. The losses involved will be at least $180,000,000," the banker added, "and if the war continued another nine months Germany would be ruined financially."

OVER 90,000 CHEQUES MADE OUT

More Than a Third of Soldiers Assign Part of Their Pay.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The monthly payments of assigned pay or separation allowances to relatives or dependents of the men under arms now aggregate more than $2,000,000. More than 90,000 cheques are made out each month by the branch dealing with this part of the work. Over one-third of the soldiers who have enlisted are now giving part of their pay to friends or dependents at home, and about one-quarter of the total force, representing approximately the married men, are on the list for separation allowance. It is interesting to note that the proportion of the men who are assigning their pay is considerably larger among the recruits of the past few months than was the case with the men who went overseas at first. This is accounted for on the ground that a considerably larger proportion of the later recruits are Canadian-born, and have dependents or relatives in Canada. With the first and second contingents a large percentage was composed of unmarried men who were born in Great Britain and who had no family ties or dependents in this country.

BRITISH MINISTERS' SALARIES TO BE PARTLY PAID IN BONDS

A despatch from London says: In response to strong agitation by the newspapers to set the country an example of economy, preferably by accepting reductions in their salaries, it is announced that the Ministers have agreed for the future to accept one-quarter of their salaries in the form of five per cent. Exchequer bonds. It is considered extremely probable that the whole body of the civil servants will be invited to accept a portion of their salaries in a similar form of Exchequer or war loan bonds.

In reply to an interpellation in the House of Commons, Premier Asquith declined to move that the members of Parliament should receive no salaries.

BOMB IS LIKE A WOMAN.

"You Can Never Tell What It Will Do Next."

"A bomb is like a woman—you can never tell what it is going to do next," writes an Irish officer from the British front in Flanders. He has been engaged for several weeks in experimenting with bombs and various new-fangled bomb-throwing devices.

"The more one has to do with bombs the more afraid one becomes of them," he continues, "for one cannot slay with explosive all day without going aloft some time, and the toll of good men who have been blown to pieces by their own bombs is both long and sad."

"Bomb throwing as an art is still in its infancy, changing almost from day to day, and what state of development or perfection it will have reached before the end of the war cannot be guessed. At the best it is a fiendish way of fighting, for its injuries are ever of the ghastliest."

"Yet, bombing, like most other aspects of war, has its humorous side, and I have seen a whole trench helpless with laughter at the sight of two men running opposite ways to avoid a sausage bomb they had spotted sailing over from a German trench mortar. They collided, and sat down facing each other like vaudeville comedians. The bomb dropped in the middle, almost touching them both, and then completely failed to explode."

"One morning twenty or more members of the general staff came around to our trench to witness a test of a new catapult arrangement for throwing bombs to the considerable distance of 250 yards. With great interest they watched the screwing down of the great arm, and the placing and securing of the bomb in position. Then upward and forward swung the arm; but the missile, instead of hurtling in the direction of the enemy, rose gently a few feet in the air, not having been properly secured; and then prepared to descend again to earth. Such a rapid and complete self-effacement of staff officers' had never before been seen; they fled like rabbits, and as they rounded the corner of the trench, the bomb went off a few feet from the ground, completely destroying the new catapult."

Some girls imagine that every unmarried man they meet is looking for a wife.

While waiting for a dead man's shoes you could probably earn a better pair.

TURKS DESPISE GERMANS.

A Mahometan Is Disgusted at Their Cruelty.

"I resent impatiently the constant imputation that the Turks and the Germans are alike. We are above the Germans—the civilized world ought to recognize this fact—and our culture is superior to the German Kultur," writes Hadji Anoullah Mahdi Bey in "The New Armenia," published in New York. He calls the article "The Jenebet (Polluter) Germans." He continues: "People call us the tools of the Germans, but it is the Germans who are our tools. We needed a powerful European ally for the triumph of our Moslem religion, and Germany was anxious to serve our purpose. They have served us in every capacity—they have furnished us with money, ammunition, aeroplanes, submarines, battleships—but, nevertheless, we despise them."

"Another mark of inferiority of the Germans to us is manifested in their cruelty toward their co-religionists. As long as the Germans are presuming Christians they have no right to murder the children of the Belgians and the French, to dishonor their women, or to bombard their cathedrals. No Mahometan woman ever dishonored a Mahometan man or intentionally destroyed a mosque. Our Koran enjoins us to wage eternal war against infidels who say that God is Christ. But Germany has no right to act as though she were Mahometan."

"We must keep our alliance with Germany until our aims are attained. Accompany the devil until you have crossed the bridge! When this war is over and Islam triumphs, woe to the jenebet Germans! Then Germany will appreciate the meaning of the prayer that every pious Moslem has to repeat daily:

"Oh, Allah! destroy the infidels, Thine enemies, the enemies of true religion. Oh, Allah! make their children orphans and defile their abodes; cause their feet to slip; give them and their women, their children and relatives, their brothers and their friends, their possessions and their race, as booty to the Moslems!"

SITUATION CRITICAL IN TURK CAPITAL

London, Feb. 24.—An Athens despatch to The Morning Post says: "News from Constantinople represents the situation there as the most critical since the news of the fall of Erzerum has leaked out. The always latent dissatisfaction of the people with their Young Turk rulers is now assuming hourly more threatening proportions, both in the capital and the provinces, especially at Smyrna, where the populace is in almost open revolt. The popular anger is augmented by the great dearth of necessities, due to the blockade and the stoppage of trade and industry. The leaders of the disaffection are Osman Pasha, Abdi Pasha and Suwat Pasha. Starting developments, it is asserted, may be confidently expected very shortly."
