CLAREMONT
The closing event in the fine winter's Lyceum Course of entertainments was given last Monday evening by "Oyapela and Company." "Oyapela" means "Singing Water" and is the name of the Indian Maiden who is the leader of the trio of young ladies who furnished a program, declared by many of the audience both unique and artistic but all too short. Oyapela is a niece of the Chief of the Cree Indians and appeared in Indian costume. She is a splendid story teller, a good singer and fascinating interpreter of the myths legends and strange customs of her people. Like Oyapela her companions pianist and violinist, are artists of the first rank, unaffected and talented in their art. Their interpretation of the woe of Longfellow's "Hiawatha" with appropriate and beautiful music was very fine and much enjoyed by the audience that packed the building. Oyapela's native songs, chants and melodies of her primitive people was very interesting and educative, as well as entertaining. The two instrumentalists exhibited no little skill in their interpretation and rendition. This community is certainly much indebted to the local committee who arranged the splendid Chautauqua winter's course.

R. E. Forsyth, was home last week end from an extended visit on business in Toronto.

"The Amos Iron Trum pet" will be studied in the Bible classes of the Baptist Sunday School, 9.30 a.m. this Lord's Day, Subject for the 10.30 o'clock service "Elijah and Elisha as Types of John the Baptist and Jesus." evening "The Man in Danger but Delivered."

Rev. A. McLellan, Peter McNab, sr., Thomas Paterson, Tobias' Caster, John McGrath, R. J. How and A. L. Middleton of the Claremont Masonic Lodge, also William Wallace and Harry Porter, attended the funeral of the late William Harding at Stouffville on Monday March 6th. There was an unusually large concourse in attendance in tribute to this much respected citizen.

The Junior Evangelistic Band of McMaster University, Toronto spent the week end with the Claremont Baptist Church, holding services Friday, Saturday and Sunday with great acceptance to the people. Their addresses were deeply evangelical and spiritual, and their quartette selections were rendered in fine form. The tenor solos of Mr. Perry were exceptionally good. More of this special music would have been rendered on Sunday, were it not for the unfortunate indisposition of one of the quartette who had to drop out before the evening service was half through.

Mr. R. Murray Simmond, the leader is a scholarship man, and although only nineteen years old knows how to deliver the truth, as do the others.

Miss R. Gilmour who suffered a severe stroke on Saturday near her home is at this writing still unconscious. At her advanced age there is small hope, it is thought, of her recovery. Mrs. G. M. Forsyth, attended her on Saturday and Sunday. Orchestra: The Nonsuch Quartet; Miss Kitty Warbler; Miss Victor Elouete; Deacon Sambo.
