British Envoy to Canada

The probable appointment of a representative of the British Government to serve as a special envoy to Canada, entirely distinct from the Governor General, seems to be about the latest word in international anomalies. What is this organization we used to call the British Commonwealth of Nations? Is it an international league or a single nation? Whatever it is and no matter how little it may be understood, it is evidently able to function. We can only watch its further developments with mingled awe and amazement.

The idea of Great Britain having a representative at Ottawa in one sense a logical result—in so far as anything is logical in the relationship between England and her sister nations—of the new idea of empire established at the last imperial conference. Mr. Amery, Secretary of State for the Dominions, who has just returned from the first complete tour of British territory ever made by a British minister, has been zealously spreading this new doctrine. More than three hundred enthusiastic audiences in the Dominions have heard him speak of "equal freedom under the Crown, in which no one Government admitted subordination to any other of its members."

We have seen, this principle work out in the dispatch of ministers by Canada and the Irish-Free State to foreign countries; in the membership of the Dominions in the League of Nations and in their appointment of High Commissioners in London, but this is the first suggestion that the British Government must send special representatives to its own Dominions. And what the status of the proposed envoy to Canada would be presents a complex problem. He cannot be an ambassador or a minister, for, after all, the Dominion cannot be classed as a foreign country. But if he is not he will rank below the ministers of foreign countries—the American Minister, for example—in the official life of the Canadian capital. Yet what is one more anomaly in the life of the British Empire?

At all events, Great Britain and the Dominions now stand forth as free and equal partners in an unwieldy organization in which London finds herself with less and less control. There is little that the British Government can do if one of these grown-up children of hers decides it wants something. Mr. Amery returned from his trip impressed with the vigor of their national life. There is no longer any mention of the old scheme of an Imperial Federation and an Imperial Parliament. Canada, Australia, the Irish Free State, New Zealand and South Africa can never return to such close allegiance with the mother country. They will now accept no bonds beyond those of common loyalty to the British Crown, symbolized by their Governor Generals, and if Canada's lead is followed special envoys between the mother country and her children will serve as the mediums through which these independent nations will arrive at a policy of co-operation.—N.Y. NO BETTER MEDICINE FOR LITTLE ONES

Is What Thousands of Mothers Say of Baby's Own Tablets

With the passing of winter many people feel weak, depressed and easily tired. The body lacks the vital force and energy pure blood alone can give. In a word, while not exactly sick, the indoor life of winter has left its mark upon them. A blood-building, nerve-restoring tonic is needed to give renewed health and energy. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are an all-year-round blood builder and nerve tonic, but are especially useful in the spring. Every dose helps to make new, rich, red blood and with this new blood returning strength, cheerfulness and good health quickly follow.

If you are pale, easily tired, or breathless at the least exertion, if your complexion is poor or you are troubled with pimples or eruptions, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are just what you need to put you right. If you have twinges of rheumatism, are subject to headaches and backaches, if you are irritable and nervous, if your sleep does not refresh you, or your appetite is poor, you need the treatment Dr. Williams' Pink Pills alone can give—you need the new blood, new strength and new energy this medicine always brings. Mr. A. Marcotte, North Ham. Que., writes: "I have found great benefit from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Before I began using them I was in a badly run-down condition, and at times felt scarcely able to work. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have changed all this and since taking them I am enjoying the best of health. Every man who feels run-down and easily tired should give this great medicine a fair trial."

Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for anaemia, rheumatism, neuralgia, indigestion or nervousness. Take them as a tonic if you are not. In the best physical condition and cultivate a resistance that will keep you well and strong. You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

English Train Bill Gives "Lying Down" Privileges

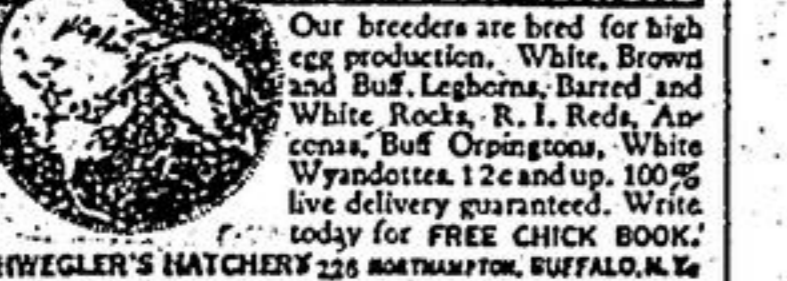

London.—Sleeping accommodation on the English trains, which is obtainable only if the passenger travels first class, has always been rather expensive. A bill has recently been introduced in Parliament, however, "to provide lying-down accommodation on night journeys in third-class railway carriages."

The wording, it will be noted, is scrupulously accurate in referring to "lying down" rather than to "sleeping." Accommodation. The bill provides that every train which has first-class sleeping cars shall have at least one-fifth of its third-class compartments equipped with beds, bunks or "stretchers."

The "lying down tickets," as they are called, are to cost only five shillings ($1.25) more than the ordinary third-class fare.

Lexicographers state that there are 20,000 useless words in the English language. Maybe, and there are also many more useful ones than most people realize.

When all was over the professor swung around on his stool and in wrathful voice said: "Ach! Never have I heard such a voice! The Woman's Vote

Manchester Guardian (Lib.): The war, whatever its other results, did at least give women a chance to break with a past tradition of female inferiority to work, to organize, and to serve in public life as in private. Social equality was achieved; it was only necessary to recognize it by the removal of ancient disqualifications and barriers. . . . When the historian reviews the record of this generation he will probably regard this public recognition of sex equality as the most significant and far-reaching social change of the period. It has already released vast stores of human energy hitherto thwarted, and is transforming in all sorts of natural and wholesome ways the personal relationship of men and women.

I always keep a box of the Tablets in the house, and would advise all other mothers to do so."

Charlie Sets Forth To Make a Call

But He Omitted to Note Auntie Edith's Address

London—Certain writers make a practice of bewailing the allegedly degenerate times in which they live. In their view, the zest for adventure which led Sir Francis Drake and many others to undertake the unknown perils of travel no longer actuate Anglo-Saxons. These writers have not presumably met Charlie Gadsell, a young man whose parents live in Hastings.

One day recently, Charlie, who is just three and a half, was told to go to his grandmother's house, three doors from his home. This did not fall in with his own private plans, so instead of turning in at grandmother's gate he contained more than a mile to Hastings station and entered a waiting train bound for London. The guard shut the door of what he thought was an empty compartment, and when the door was again opened the train was in Charing Cross Station. Charlie had been in the station before, although he had a chaperon on the previous occasions. He walked up and said to a station policeman, "I am looking for my auntie Edith. She lives in London."

Charlie's inability to remember a more precise address resulted in an invitation to spend the afternoon in Bow Street police station, where he had a thoroughly enjoyable time until the hue and cry that had been started in Hastings reached London, and the young adventurer resumed his travels, but this time in the direction of his family hearth.

Washington Says Lindbergh May Fly Over Atlantic To Europe Again Soon

Washington, D.C.—A rumor is current here that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh will fly the Atlantic again in May. It is said that he will pick up a prominent United States automobile manufacturer and a United States manufacturer of tires and take them for a flight to the principal capitals of Europe.

Confirmation of the rumor cannot be obtained. Col. Lindbergh is not accessible here and his friends refuse to discuss the matter. It is known that Col. Lindbergh has desired to fly over Europe ever since his flight from New York to Paris, when he planned to complete an air tour of Europe, but was ordered back to the United States by the United States Government.

Press Inspires Oversea Flights, Says Birkenhead

London—Lord Birkenhead thinks the attempts to fly the Atlantic would be few and far between if the press "failed to advertise all the preparations of the flyers, all their efforts and their lipsticks."

In a humorous speech delivered at the annual dinner of the News-vendors' Provident Institution he made merry with the chase of newspapers after sensationalism and the various channel swimmers and trans-Atlantic flyers.

"Any man, woman or child who in existing conditions tries to fly over the Atlantic is obviously mad. He may be a valiant maniac, but that does not in the least come into the argument," said Lord Birkenhead. "In my judgment, there is nothing being advanced in aerial navigation by these rash and dangerous exploits."

Letter Tells of Wonderful Relief After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Coniston, Ontario.—"After a severe operation and a three weeks' stay in a hospital I returned home so weak that I was unable to move a chair. For four months I was almost frantic with pains and suffering until I thought sure there could not be any help for me. I had very severe pains in my left side and suffered agony every month. One day when I was not able to get up my mother begged me to try your medicine. My husband got me a bottle of Vegetable Compound at once and I took it. I started a second bottle, and to my surprise and joy the pains in my side left me completely and I am able to do all my work without help. I am a farmer's wife, so you see I can't be idle long. In all, I have taken six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, five boxes of the Compound Tablets, two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine, and have also used the Sanative Wash."—Mrs. L. LAZARUS, Box 103, Coniston, Ontario.

The BABY

Why do so many, many babies of today escape all the little fretful spells and infantile ailments that used to worry mothers through the day, and keep them upbait the night?

If you don't know the answer, you haven't discovered pure, harmless Castoria. It is sweet to the taste, and sweet in the little stomach. And its gentle influence seems felt all through the tiny system. Not even a distasteful dose of castor oil does so much good.

Fletcher's Castoria is purely vegetable, so you may give it freely, at first sign of colic, or constipation, or diarrhea. Or those many times when you just don't know what is the matter. For real sickness, call the doctor, always. At other times, a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria.

The doctor often tells you to do just that; and always says Fletcher's. Other preparations may be just as pure, just as free from dangerous drugs, but why experiment? Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold!
