Camouflage Is Essential

Successful duck shooting from a sink boat depends upon just one thing—camouflage. Camouflage so perfectly done that the boat will fit into the surrounding water well enough to fool the wisest old duck afloat or a wing. The sink boat is almost, but not quite, exactly what its name implies, for it is sunk to the point where it will just remain afloat and no more, with the deck and coamings the only protection between the gunner and the deep blue sea. Obviously, such boats cannot be used in rough waters. The boat itself is nothing but a simple scow, made to fit either one or two gunners. The large wooden deck and the side wings serve to steady the scow and are practically awash at all times.

One Government building had 200 different types of door knobs, said C. le Maistre, secretary of the British Engineer Standards Association at Oxford.

Are You Ready

When your Children Cry for It

Baby has little upsets at times. All your care cannot prevent them. But you can be prepared. Then you can do what any experienced nurse would do—what most physicians would tell you to do—give a few drops of plain Castoria. No sooner done than Baby is soothed; relief is just a matter of moments. Yet you have eased your child without use of a single doubtful drug; Castoria is vegetable. So it's safe to use as often as an infant has any little pain you cannot pat away. And it's always ready for the crueler pangs of colic, or constipation, or diarrhea; effective, too, for older children. Twenty-five million bottles were bought last year.

Dolling Up Trader Horn for His Visit

A hat made for a Dutch predikant, or minister, crowned the noble brov of the old buccaneer, pioneer big-game hunter, and what not, when he crossed the Atlantic to the land of noisy fame. It was the best Mrs. Ethelrada Lewis could do in the stores of Johannesburg, South Africa. Old gentlemen are very difficult things to dress, she confides to us in her introduction to "Harold the Webbed, or The Young Vikings" (Simon and Schuster). Trader Horn's second book. When the Trader set out to visit England and America, Mrs. Lewis, his literary sponsor, knowing well his casualness with clothes, undertook to supervise his wardrobe. Then she found out all about the difficulty, although, as she continues, she allows exceptions:

Not perhaps with the English military type or the strong, silent, aging, hundred-per center of New York. There is a formula for such types easy to follow. But an old gentleman with a beard! . . . A literary old gentleman! . . . well, of course! He must have an old-fashioned Inverness cape, such as all the literary Victorians wore so effectively. A cape made, if possible, of rough gray Irish tweed will be dogfish suggestion of a big cheuk woven in it.

A Victorian old gentleman with a beard! . . . Well, of course—a soft black hat of poetic build, such as Tennyson . . . Yes, and a wide shepherd's shawl or plaidie for the shoulders to enclose the beard in winter weather.

I saw it all—and then I looked at the Golden City and felt that the vision splendid could never be brought to reality in such an environment.

After a week's search, I began to despair. I then entered a store which eventually did try to solidify my ideas with some degree of intelligence. I found the wire, soft plaidie. I found a black hat: not the Tennysonian hat of my dreams, but still—it was a soft black hat. I looked at it thoughtfully as the young man held it out. What did it remind me of? Not Tennyson; it missed the poetic rabe of the brim. Not an English parson—that jolly, adaptive headgear. Not . . . it looked more smug than any of these. Closer, less frank of outline.

"If I were you, madam," said the thoughtful voice of the young man, "I would perhaps not mention to Mr. Horn for whom we stock this shape. To tell you the truth, we sell them to the Dutch predikants (ministers)." Our eyes met guiltily. "Thank you," I said fervently. "Thank you."

Yes, the only sin I feel conscious of at present in my entire dealings with Aloysius Horn is that I let Trader Horn, buccaneer and big-game hunter and the author of a successful book, go home to England in a Dutch predikant's hat.

It was this same young salesman, a tall, good-looking boy of twenty or so, who vastly enjoyed the fun of clothing Aloysius Horn, who, when I first tried to explain my sartorial vision to him, said ruminatingly: "An Inverness, madam . . . a black hat—a soft one . . . Why, madam, you mean like Thomas Carlyle, do you not?"

My quest was over; here was one of the cognoscenti smiling understandingly at me. Who says we are Philistines in the Golden City!

Brighton council decided to ask for sanction to borrow £117,000, instead of £92,000, to reconstruct the Aquarium. This will mean another Government inquiry.

ARE YOU RUN-DOWN?

All That is Needed is a Tonic to Build Up the Blood

There are many people who have been semi-invalids so long that they accept their condition as a life burden. They have endured nervousness, broken sleep and a generally run-down feeling so long that they have given up hope of again enjoying good health. In most of these cases a well chosen diet, fresh air and a tonic to build up the blood would do wonders. And as a blood-building tonic no other medicine can compare with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. There is scarcely a spot in Canada where you will not find some formerly ailing person who has found new health through the use of this medicine. The experience of Mrs. Thomas Ahearn, St. Malo, Que., bears out these statements. She says:—"I have the greatest reason to be thankful for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me. I was in a very weak and run-down condition. Frequently I would faint and my legs would swell badly. It was almost impossible to do any housework. It seemed as if my blood had turned to water. In this weak and despondent condition I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. A few boxes proved that they were helping me, but I continued taking the pills until I had used a dozen boxes, by which time I found myself a completely restored woman, able to do my work without fatigue, a better appetite and a sense of cheerfulness, where-before I had been despondent. For all this, thanks to the health-giving qualities of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

If you are feeling run-down, give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial and new health will be yours. You can get the pills from any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

How Many Feet in a Second?

The Proper Way to Judge Your Car's Speed for Safety's Sake

Charles Hopewell, police magistrate, of Ottawa, Canada, contributed to a recent bulletin of the Ottawa Automobile Club a suggestion for motorists which, if universally followed, would no doubt effect a marked change for the better in automobile statistics.

"Cease to think in terms of miles and hours," writes Magistrate Hopewell, "and think in terms of feet and seconds. . . . If an object suddenly crosses your path fifty feet ahead from where you are sitting at the wheel and you are travelling thirty miles per hour, you have only one second in which to act to avoid an accident, and only half a second if the object is only twenty-five feet away." Illustrating his advice by figures, Magistrate Hopewell points out that an automobile travelling fifteen miles an hour is covering twenty-two feet a second; at twenty miles an hour it is covering twenty-nine feet a second; at twenty-five miles, thirty-six feet; at thirty miles, forty-two feet; at forty miles, fifty-eight feet; at forty-five miles, sixty-six feet. What should therefore be constantly in the motorist's thought is the time limit which his speed is setting for him should an emergency rise up before him.

Experienced drivers will generally agree that this is good advice; many might probably add that they have found it out for themselves. But the statistics show by inference a considerable proportion of drivers who give no thought whatever to the number of feet that a car goes in a second. Cars are driven both responsibly and irresponsibly, carefully and carelessly. The responsible driver must needs be vigilant to protect his passengers and himself against the irresponsible and careless. A driver whose perception is trained in terms of feet and seconds is far more likely to have his own car in constant actual control, and to be quicker to judge the speed and behavior of an irresponsible, than is one who thinks in terms of miles and hours. It is not space and time behind, but space and time immediately in front, that he may have to reckon with. As things are, a good many drivers, as they come to hear of it, will no doubt adopt Magistrate Hopewell's suggestion, and one may believe that he has thus prevented a good many mishaps that might otherwise have occurred.—Christian Science Monitor Editorial.

Afghanistan to Have Parliament of 150 Members

King Amanullah Justifies His Reputation of Being a "Bold Innovator"

Moscow.—The Afghan popular assembly recently convened by King Amanullah made a number of important decisions indicating a tendency toward modern education in the country, according to reports from Kabul.

Afghanistan is now to have its first elected Parliament, with 150 members chosen for a term of three years. Persons over 20 able to read and write are entitled to elect deputies.

The literacy test in a country like Afghanistan, of course, confines the franchise to a small percentage of the population, although the Minister of Education, reporting to the popular assembly, stated that considerable progress had been achieved in his field, 32 primary schools having been established, with more than 5000,000 pupils.

Negotiations for building three rail roads in Afghanistan, which hitherto has entirely lacked means of communication, have been initiated with German and French companies.

A compulsory three-year military service for the whole male population has been introduced, and the army now possesses an increased supply of modern weapons.

While Afghan parliamentarianism, in its first stages, probably will not follow European models, the far-reaching character of the proposed changes indicate that Amanullah's reputation as a bold innovator is fully justified.

A WONDERFUL TRIBUTE

Baby's Own Tablets Declared to be Worth Their Weight in Gold

A mother has only to use Baby's Own Tablets once to be convinced that nothing else can equal them in banishing the ills of her little ones. Once used, always used, as long as there are small children in the home—that is the tribute thousands of mothers pay the Tablets.

Among the many, many mothers who are anxious to tell of their experience with Baby's Own Tablets is Mrs. Griffith, of East Hamilton, Ont., who writes:—"Shortly after coming to Canada I began giving the Tablets to my baby boy who was then six weeks old. The result was so pleasing that since that time I have always kept the Tablets in the house. I have two children now and both of them are the picture of health. Baby's Own Tablets are the only medicine they have ever had and I really believe the Tablets to be worth their weight in gold."

Baby's Own Tablets are free from all injurious drugs and can be given to the youngest babe with absolute safety. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

What many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 60 years since its invention.

RED ROSE TEA

England

To me, England is the country, and the country is England. And when I ask myself what I mean by England, when I think of England when I am abroad, England comes to me through my various senses—through the ear, through the eye, and through certain imperishable scents. I will tell you what they are, and there may be those among you who feel as I do.

The sounds of England, the tinkle of the hammer on the anvil in the country smithy, the corncrakes on a dewy morning, the sound of the scythe against the whetstone, and the sight of a plough team coming over the brow of a hill, the sight that has been seen in England since England was a land, and may be seen in England long after the Empire has perished and every works in England has ceased to function, for centuries the one eternal sight of England. The wild anemones in the woods in April, the last load at night of hay being drawn down a lane as the twilight comes on, when you can scarcely distinguish the figures of horses as they take it home to the farm, and above all, most subtle, most penetrating and most moving, the smell of wood coming up in an autumn evening, or the smell of the scutch fires; that wood smoke that our ancestors, tens of thousands of years ago, must have caught on the air when they were coming home with the result of the day's forage, when they were still nomads, and when they were still roaming the forests and plains of the continent of Europe. . . .

Nothing can be more touching than to see how the working man and woman after generations in the towns will have their tiny bit of garden if they can, will go to gardens if they can, to look at something they have never seen as children, but which their ancestors knew and loved. The love of these things is innate and inherent in our people. It makes for that love of home, one of the strongest features of our race, and it is that that makes our race seek its new home in the Dominions overseas, where they have room to see things like this that they can no more see at home. It is that power of making homes, almost peculiar to our people, and it is one of the sources of their greatness. They go overseas, and they take with them what they learned at home; love of justice, love of truth, and the broad humanity that are so characteristic of English people.—Stanley Baldwin, in "On England and Other Addresses"

Doctor Finds Smoking Relief for Seasickness

London.—Tobacco smoking is the latest remedy for seasickness recommended by travelers. Gordon D. Knox, writing in "The British Medical Journal," claims to have made the great discovery by accident.

He said that he had happened to light a pipe after a slight feeling of nausea and the illness disappeared. He urged a friend to try the same remedy, which operated this time with equal success.

A tart temper never mellows with age and a sharp tongue is the only edged tool that grows keener and sharper with constant use.—Washington Irving.

MEDICINE FOR YOUNG GIRLS

Mothers Endorse Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sydney, N. S.—"My seventeen year old daughter took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for weakness and pains. She could not go about much with the other girls as she was not strong enough. We got six bottles and it did her a great turn. She's working out now in a store and walks three miles every morning and back in the evening."—MRS. MARY VANCE, 44 Lingan Road, Sydney, N. S.

Pinewood, Ont.—"I constantly had pains in my back and side and spent two days in bed every month. I have taken three boxes of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Tablets.
