COUNCIL CONSIDER

In the "Health Bulletin," published by the Department of Public Health for the City of Toronto, of the current week, a full statement is made on Diphtheria Control. It is stated in part as follows:

Diphtheria Must Be Stamped Out
With the knowledge we now possess of the absolute control of this disease, a case of diphtheria occurring in any community or municipality is a reflection on the intelligence of the department of health, the medical profession and the citizens; and every death should be looked upon as being due to culpable negligence.

Read, Mark and Inwardly Digest the Following Facts

1. A Department of Health failing to efficiently inform the citizens of the possibility of immunizing everyone against diphtheria is guilty of culpable negligence.
2. Parents or guardians who, having been told that it is possible to have their children absolutely protected against this disease, fail to do so, are betraying a sacred trust and will be morally responsible should one of their children die from this disease.
3. A physician, when chosen by any family, has had placed in his hands the sacred trust of efficiently safeguarding the health and lives of all members of that family. It, therefore, becomes his duty to inform them of any advance in medical science, such as immunization against diphtheria, and to advise them unreservedly to have their children immunized and thus absolutely protected against this disease. They naturally look to him for guidance and in the vast majority of cases will readily accept his advice. His failure to give this advice is an unpardonable breach of trust.
4. By close co-operation of our citizens with their family physicians and with the Department of Public Health, this disease can be absolutely stamped out within the next two years.

'Antitoxin is Nature's Own Method of Cure

A most interesting feature about antitoxin is that it is nature's own method of combating the disease. That is, it is nature's way of defending our bodies against the ravages of diphtheria. For instance, the moment anyone contracts this disease the body begins the brewing of an anti-toxin but, unfortunately, in a large percentage of cases the amount of toxin produced by the germs is so great that the disease proves fatal before sufficient antitoxin is developed within the body. Hence the necessity for reinforcement of the human antitoxin by that obtained from the horse; and this explains the wonderful reduction in mortality following the scientific use of this remedy.

The process by which antitoxin is produced in the horse is interesting. For instance, a perfectly healthy, well-fed horse is gradually and painlessly immunized against diphtheria by small doses of the toxin of diphtheria, without any of the germs of that disease, until its blood contains a large amount of antitoxin. This is then obtained by drawing off a certain amount of blood from the horse and carefully preparing the antitoxin from the serum.

However, it must be borne in mind that in order to obtain one hundred per cent. efficiency in a case of diphtheria by the use of this most valuable of nature's remedies, antitoxin, it must be administered early and in large enough doses to completely neutralize the toxin that has been developed in the patient.

Notwithstanding the fact that we have been in possession of this wonderful therapeutic agent for over thirty years, yet as a consequence of the failure of the profession to administer this antitoxin early enough and in sufficiently large doses, the number of deaths each year in Toronto for the past five years has been:

1924.....	45
1925.....	60
1926.....	83
1927.....	112
1928.....	43

With diphtheria we have not only to consider the mortality, but also the after effects, such as a disabled and crippled heart, probably for life, as well as, occasionally, organic disease of the kidneys.

It must be apparent, then, that diphtheria is still one of the most deadly enemies of our children, especially of those under five years of age, as that age group constitutes from fifty to seventy-five per cent. of all deaths from this disease. This is the pre-school age, and before they come under the observation of departments of health in an organized way. This is the age at which parents and guardians are often deceived and misled by the insidious onset of the disease; they frequently think that the child has only an ordinary cold in the head. This gradually grows worse, the doctor is at last called, but only after the child has become croupy and its breathing has become so painfully labored that it is too late for any hope and even death itself is a happy release.

Russia Annexes
Franz Joseph Land, Austrian Colony

Vienna.—In pre-war days the Austro-Hungarian Empire was not regarded as a great colonizing power, and the only territory to which it laid claim beyond its own borders was a small settlement in China and Franz Josef Land.
The former became Chinese property once more after the war, and the news has recently reached this city that the Soviet Government has annexed the latter and placed it under the administrative control of the district of Archangel.

Franz Josef Land is a group of islands in the Arctic Ocean, northwest of Spitzbergen. Its name was given to it by the Austrian mountaineer and explorer, Payer, who first visited the polar regions as a member of a German expedition. In 1872 an Austrian expedition set out for the same islands, and during the year 1874 Payer and his companions explored part of the land.

A pyramid of stones was erected, the Austrian flag hoisted, and the territory given the name of the Emperor, Franz Josef. Eight years later an international polar commission was set up and a number of research experiments carried out by experts from the leading European states and from the United States.

Franz Josef Land is uninhabited, but polar bears and seals abound there, and it is thought that the Soviet annexation is linked up with considerations for future fur trade.
