A HINT TO ASSESSORS

A recent decision given out by Judge McKinnon at Arthur may be helpful to some of our Courts of Revision in fixing the assessment of property. A West Luther resident bought a farm for $1,200, and the Assessor and Court of Revision placed the assessment at $2,000. In giving judgment in favor of the plaintiff the bench ruled that the selling price established the real value and that the Court of Revision overstepped itself when it boosted the assessment. Valuation of a property apparently is based on what it is intended for. For fire insurance purposes the valuation is based on the amount it will cost to replace it with a similar building; the assessment is computed from the actual amount of money it will bring in the open market.—Tara Leader.

OTTAWA IS CHANGING

All true lovers of Canada will be delighted to know of the growing impression at Ottawa that the government may modify or reverse its policy of granting clearances to vessels smuggling liquor into the United States, says the New Outlook. During last session of Parliament there was scarcely a sitting at which petitions were not presented from religious and civic bodies asking that clearances be refused. And these formal protestations were said to be mild as compared with the telegrams and letters which have been deluging Ministers of the Crown ever since. Most of the wrath falls on the head of the minister of National Revenue, and whilst it may scarcely seem fair, as he simply administers the policy of the Government's position throughout this whole controversy. So far, neither the Liberal nor the Conservative party has taken sides on the question, and that is why so many decent Canadians have to hang their heads in shame. There is a marked decrease in rum-running lately, but our country can claim no share in bringing it about. There is, nevertheless, some solid comfort in the knowledge that despite the attitude of our politicians, the Canadian people as a whole are unquestionably opposed to the granting vessels. The King Government is looked upon as likely to do the honorable thing in the matter.

CLAREMONT

A very severe electrical storm passed over this locality on Saturday afternoon, accompanied by a heavy rain storm, and in Uxbridge township there was also considerable hail, but not enough to do much damage. No damage from lightning occurred in this immediate vicinity, but in Reach township the barn belonging to James Mitchell, brother of Mrs. Luther Pilkey, was completely destroyed. When the storm was seen to be approaching the men who were hoeing in the turnip field came into the barn and lay down on hay on the barn floor, when the barn was struck and in a few moments the building was in a mass of flames. None of the men was injured. A bull that was tied up in the stable underneath broke loose and jumped over the lower door and thus escaped. A number of tools and implements were lost. With the aid of a number of neighbors the frame dwelling was saved with much effort. We understand that Mr. Mitchell intends building a steel barn at once, in time to accommodate this year's grain crop.

AFTER HARVEST CULTIVATION

By W. R. Reek, Director Experimental Farm, Ridgeway, Ontario.

Special Article Written for Stouffville "Tribune"

Profits from farm crops are determined after the cost of production has been deducted; many factors enter into this cost, but among them are: preparation of seed bed, control of weeds, use of larger power units, co-operative with natural forces, seed, fertilizer, taxes, etc.

Weeds rob the growing crops of moisture, plant food and standing room and reduce the price of the grain sold. This is particularly true of some such as Sow Thistle, Twitch, Bindweed and many others to a greater or lesser degree. Weeds have to be combated according to the nature of their growth. Sunlight is one of the best partners the farmer has in the eradication of weeds. A plant up rooted during the heat of the summer will die. Nature has assisted the weed to exist and multiply, but will assist the farmer effectively in cleaning the land if effort is possible by one man, whereas put forth at the proper time.

Labor is scarce and expensive; small power units are correspondingly expensive. Four and six horse teams should be used wherever possible by one man, whereas twenty-five years ago it was seldom that more than two horses were driven by one man.

Power machinery is rapidly replacing human and horse labor. Old methods will not suffice under new conditions because one man now has to cover far more area in the same period of time and he must accomplish more one day. Applied intelligence is rapidly replacing sheer muscular endeavor.

Weed control because of existing conditions and because of the toll taken during the past fifteen years must become an integral part of the regular farm programme. Just the returns per acre prove so small that it will be profitable no longer to cultivate thousands of the most fertile acres in the Province.

After harvest cultivation is one of the surest methods of controlling weeds because the summer heat will assist.

When crops have been removed shallow ploughing or deep discing will kill the young plants and induce seeds to sprout provided there is sufficient moisture. Power implements will permit this operation in short periods of time and will enable the farmer to work a field though hard and dry.

Sow Thistle and Twitch are two of the most difficult to combat. Plough rather deeply after harvest and leave rough provided the land will become thoroughly dried; the heat and lack of moisture will go far in definitely killing the roots. If growth commences weekly cultivation must be resorted to in order that growth will be prevented. Smothering will then take place, or in other words, the plant will be deprived of food. Gathering and hauling Twitch off the land is too expensive. Deep ploughing is effective against Twitch.
