NOTES AND COMMENTS

The Ontario election will be held on Wednesday, October 30th—just six weeks away.

There are still many autos running on the highways with glaring headlights. So far as we can learn very little is done to correct this menace which is the cause of so many accidents. It is one thing that the Department of Highways has failed to cope with satisfactorily.

Due to complaints that in many parts of the United States Canadian bank bills are accepted only at discounts ranging from 3 to 16 per cent, the Federal Reserve Board and the Department of Commerce have undertaken to work out plan that will assure acceptance of Dominion currency practically at par.

There is no more Sunday in Russia. The Soviet has abolished the Sabbath as a day of rest and they will now have "the continuous production week." The only redeeming feature about the new law is that every worker will be allowed one day's rest after every five or six days' labor, but Sunday is not recognized or set apart for all the people.

We hope that the report in The Globe that rubber sidewalks will be a thing of the not distant future, will not deter the local municipal council in proceeding with the new cement walks in town. The hold-up in the work at the present time has really nothing to do with the council waiting for this discovery to develop but rather to the contractor having to go on another piece of work.

Capt. Harold Bruehs 12th York Rangers, will likely be the Conservative standard-bearer in the coming provincial election, in the riding of North York. According to the Express Herald, the Conservative newspaper at Newmarket, Mr. Bruehs is understood to be the likely candidate. It is not certain at the present time whether Wm. Pearson, sitting Liberal member, will be a candidate again, but the matter will shortly be settled at a meeting of the party representatives in the riding within a short time.

THE PUBLIC FORGETS

To the business man who thinks the public does not need to be constantly reminded of who he is and what he sells, the often told story of Pyle's Pearline will bear repeating. In 1904 Pearline, a cleaning material was used by a large percentage of the housewives in the country, and the company spent $500,000 in advertising that year. Later the advertising was curtailed, and about 1907 it was discontinued altogether, as the company thought the product was so well-known that it did not require advertising. Sales fell rapidly but the owners persisted in their non-advertising policy until 1915, when the whole concern, including the good will was sold for $12,000. Pearline was dead. Many other products, whose names were household words a few years ago are not heard of today because they failed to keep up their advertising and consequently the public forgot them. Business men must remember that new generations are coming along all the time, and these new buyers must be personally sold on the product of a store, as their fathers and mothers were sold before them. The only time it is safe to stop advertising is when one is ready to go out of business.

GOODWOOD

Anyone interested in beautiful farm homes will find himself satisfied when he visits the homestead of Mr. and Mrs. David Watson, Goodwood. It is beloved by the owner because of its present beauty and the years of association.

It was the writers privilege to be an unexpected guest in the home this summer. One could not but be impressed with the beauty and cleanliness of everything. Everywhere is the evidence of industry.

Entering the gateway, following the gravelled lane, one finds themselves in an avenue of fine maples and behind these in delightful seclusion, lay the farm buildings and the house that is seasoned with years of love, laughter, pain and everything that goes in the making of life. The eye is drawn instantly to the flaming beauty of giant gladioli, hollyhock and other fine blooms.

Beyond these to the south lay the fruit garden, beautifully kept and resting after its bounteous production in the past season.

Then as we proceed to the garden gate leading to the house door, we are entranced by the wonderful green of the lawn that encircles the house. In spite of dry weather it has managed to keep its emerald beauty. To the east and north are stately old spruces—banked here and there by shrubbery, perennials and the riotous colors of perfectly tended annual beds. One could not but feel that here was a perfect heaven.

Passing into the house one found themselves in large, bright, exquisitely clean rooms, furnished with the quiet simplicity that leaves no doubt in the mind of the guest as to the refinement of the owners. Choice blooms decorated these bony rooms and added to the distinction of this house where people really live."

It is the fruit of real work from hands that are not ashamed to labor and find glory in the result. Are they not artists? Having created the beautiful?

The writer was impressed with the sanctity of Christian living and all it implies.

Lucky the man who buys such a home but our regret is with those who expect to leave it forced by the ill health of Mr. Watson. Let us pay tribute while they are with us to enjoy our appreciation. Mr. Watson, sold his stock on Friday, his very fine herd of milk cows. He has been in the dairy business for years and had something good to offer the public. The farm is also on the market now.

This has been written unknown to the Watsons by an admiring friend. Knowing them as the writer does, they would scorn publicity in the form of advertisement, but this is written in the hope that prospective buyers will be alive to the chance of a farm home.

VICTORIA SQUARE

The young people of this community recently met in the home of Mr. Frank Nichols and gave a miscellaneous shower to Miss Ellis Nichols. After opening the presents the bride-to-be rose to thank her friends when stopped by Miss Ethel Morton, who on behalf of the Sunday School read an address of appreciation for her whole-hearted work among the members of the school. Mr. J. W. Brown presented the rocking chair. Miss Nichols was married on the 11th inst. to Councillor Ross E. Ratcliff of Whitchurch Township.
