Our Trade Growing In China Each Year

System of Taxes in Orient Keeps Real Markets Closed

Canadian trade in China and the influence of Canada there is growing, according to Herbert Langley, Shanghal, who passed through Montreal en route to England. Stress was laid on the value of Hon. Herbert Marler, Canadian Minister to Japan, and what a good influence he had been for Can-

At present, China, discoverer of paper, was in the peculiar position of importing it. Mr. Langley said there was a good market for Canadian paper in China, if a trade agreement could be worked out.

The chief criticism which Mr. Langley levelled at Chinese business was the tolls and taxes self-authorized war lords levied on goods, thus frightening legitimate business enterprise out of the field.

Heavy Taxes

"The average Chinese likes the foreigner and wants to do business," said Mr. Langley. "He would like to do business also with the native Chinese. But with these taxes, importation far inland is almost impossible in many classes of goods. Supposing a thing is worth $10 at the sea coast. First it pays a tax to get into China. Supposing that is $2. Then later a warlord in one of the provinces will levy his Office-Commerce Bank, up stairs own tax. There is no use protesting; Phone office 1011. Residence 1015 it has got to be paid or the goods don't go by Following that, the goods are assessed again without authority in the next province. By the time they reach their ultimate destination, they are too dear for most people to purchase. Hence very few goods get to the interior at all." Favor · British

Some of these Chinese wanted the extraterritorial rights to Shanghai given up right away. Yet the Chinese Government, the well to do Chinese, and many in between, wanted to see Shanghai kept British.
